The author didn’t dream how much more emphatic is the situation, as the Mellons are only one top faction in this group!

20 West 44th Street in Manhattan, alternative offices of The Pilgrims
New York---

We have now progressed to a review of 15 personalities from the leaked 1974 rosters of The Pilgrims for New York and London. The next two installments will feature a review of the 1980 roster and a look at 15 members who were invited to join subsequent to the 1980 lists. We remain stuck at a research impasse of not having any authenticated rosters starting in 1981 to the present for this shadow organization of multinational influence. This is a Secret Society---it releases rosters only to the membership. Its claims of being interested only in “Anglo-American good fellowship” and “the promotion of the sentiment of brotherhood among the nations” are the most glaring examples of sham claims that I have ever encountered.

1) Sir Ronald H. Grierson (1921–2014, Pilgrims London 1974; executive committee as of 1970) was with the Warburg banking interests---of the same Paul Warburg (Pilgrims Society) who apparently did most of the planning for the Federal Reserve System! Grierson was a managing director at S.G. Warburg & Company in London from 1948 to 1985. He was vice chairman of General Electric United Kingdom from 1968 to 1991. He appeared on such large boards as Chrysler; RJR Nabisco; British Aircraft; International Computers and chemical giant W.R. Grace & Company, where he was an associate of Pilgrims Society member J. Peter Grace of the Citicorp board. He held assorted positions including trustee of London Symphony Orchestra, South Bank Centre and Royal Society of Arts. Grierson was a trustee of the Institute for Strategic Dialogue, another globalist front, and was a pal of Pilgrims Society vice president Henry Kissinger. At the IST site I notice its chairman is Lord George Weidenfeld (Pilgrims London 1980 roster; decorated by Germany, Austria and Italy); he went into the publishing industry in 1948 and was elected a British Peer in 1976. George is a director (current info) of Cheyne Capital Management with offices in London, Zurich, New York and Bermuda; trustee, Herbert Quandt Foundation (BMW fortune); consultant to Bertelsmann Foundation; honorary chairman, Ben Gurion University of the Negev with 13,000 students, which conducts medical research and nanoscience studies. Any processes developed will be patented and go into the world medical/scientific cartel hopper of The Pilgrims Society for sucking wealth out of the world. George is a fellow of King's College in London and a fund raiser for Oxford University, which sends Rhodes Scholars like Bill Clinton back to the United States in order to weaken our national sovereignty and destroy the Bill of Rights! At the IST I notice three others who are very likely Pilgrims members, and another, who is definite---General Lord Guthrie of Craigiebank, who holds the strutting title of "Gold Stick to the Queen" and is a director of N.M. Rothschild London. The Rothschilds and Warburgs are in no sense strangers to each other, having worked closely for generations. Sir Grierson---

Sir Grieron was chairman of the international advisory board to private equity giant The Blackstone Group, founded by billionaire Pilgrims Society member Peter G. Peterson. He was also a director of Globalstar Telecommunications; Chime Communications; Daily Mail & General Trust; Industrial Reorganization Corporation; Etam Development; Lightbridge Corporation; Safic-Alcan S.A. He served a term as Director General for Industry of the European Commission in Brussels, Belgium. As if all this were not enough, he was also chairman of Bain & Company, one of the “Big Three” management consulting firms, with 51 offices in 33 countries and over 5,000 employees. “World Changers Wanted” is a banner at the Bain website. Pilgrims Society members are the ones who supervise our “world changers!” During his long career at S.G. Warburg, he was closely associated with Sir Siegmund Warburg and his son, George Warburg, and with Lord Roll of Ipsden---all Pilgrims Society members; and Lord Roll was a top Bilderberg official. In 1995, Warburg merged with Swiss Bank Corporation. Roger Gifford, number 685 in the historical roster of Lord Mayors of London, joined S.G. Warburg in 1978. Lord Mayors are typically Pilgrims Society members. Certainly other figures within the Warburg firm very likely became Pilgrims Society members. “High Financier” (2010) is a biography about the “extraordinary” Sir Siegmund George Warburg; in the preface Warburg was called “the City’s presiding genius.” Business Week, November 23, 1974, pages 92–93 in “A European Prefers Wall Street” mentioned that Sir Siegmund “counts among his friends some of the most powerful men in the world”---

The Warburgs (Pilgrims Society, both branches) have gifted us with this maelstrom of monetary catastrophe that is the Federal Reserve System!

2) Baron Denis Arthur Greenhill of Harrow (1913–2000, Pilgrims London 1974 and other years), Order of the British Empire, once with the United Kingdom Delegation to NATO and the Imperial Defence College, became a director of S.G. Warburg & Company. He was an official of the British Foreign Office from 1946 to 1973 and was special envoy to Rhodesia (1972–1976). Afterwards he became a governor of the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) and joined Warburg's global investment bank. Greenhill was a director of the large BAT Industries (British American Tobacco) and of the warmongering Hawker Siddeley Group (1934–1992), which was perennially infested with Pilgrims Society members. Greenhill additionally was a director of Clerical Medical & General Life Assurance and Leyland International (buses, trolleys, heavy and light commercial vehicles) ---

HAWKER SIDDELEY

United Kingdom
Foreign & Commonwealth Office

Lord Greenhill was also a director of the Wellcome Trust, currently with an endowment of some $30 billion plus, which is the United Kingdom counterpart to the Howard Hughes Medical Research Institute (controlled by Pilgrims Society members) which we visited in #8 Silver Squelchers. WT and HHMRI and other research institutions are building the framework for The Pilgrims Society's world medical cartel.

3) Gavin Astor, Lord Astor of Haver (1918–1984), third generation Pilgrims Society member, was president of The Pilgrims of Great Britain (1977–1983; executive committee, 1967–1977) and heir to one of the world's top ten historical fortunes, made largely in America---the John Jacob Astor (1763–1848) fortune, who was known as the “landlord of New York.” We could present an entire book on just the Astors---such is their history and their standing.

His son, also named John Jacob Astor, was in the 1980 Pilgrims London roster---along with four other Astors! I consider the Astors to be in the inner circle of The Pilgrims Society. Probably of lesser wealth than the Rockefellers, Rothschilds and Windsors, but still in the inner circle. Vincent Astor's wife was a top associate of David Rockefeller; these three were/are all members. The Astors Manhattan real estate holdings are today reckoned at north of $100 billion, yet all we hear is blabbering about others like Donald Trump (who might be another member). Estimates vary, but some sources claim the Astors achieved ownership of 29% of all the land in New York City. Adding that to ownership by other interlocking old-line dynastic families---the Beekmans, Schermerhorns, Vanderbilts, Iselins; and newer families such as the Rockefellers---very likely all together achieved over 60% ownership of the “Big Apple” (all Pilgrims Society dynasties). It has long since been apparent that the Astors became large holders of securities in many corporations.

Membership Committee

THE LORD ASTOR OF HEVER (Chairman)

The 1974 London roster shows a half dozen Astors---

Astor, The Hon. David
Astor of Hever, The Lord
(Chairman, Executive Committee)
Astor, The Hon. Hugh

David Astor's mother, Nancy Witcher Langhorne, came from a family of slave plantation owners who were involved in the tobacco business and later, railroad construction. The Astors owned The Times of London from 1922 to 1967 when it was sold to Lord Thomson of Fleet (Pilgrims Society). Hugh Astor had holdings in “banking, insurance and similar interests.” The “International Statesmen's Year Book and Who's Who” (London, 1969), page 42, had Hugh a director of Hambros Bank; Winterbottom Trust; Hutchinson Ltd and Middlesex Hospital and member of the Council of Trust Houses. Lord Astor was a director of Alliance Assurance and Electrolux, today the world's second largest manufacturer of appliances by units sold. Two of these Astors were Members of Parliament and "The Guardian" begged the obvious by naming the Astors as "one of the great dynasties of the world." In "History of the Great American Fortunes" (1907 first edition) financial historian Gustavus Myers detailed the immense financial frauds of the Astors from page 90 to 175. As Myers noted of American fortunes (page 273) ---

"The huge Astor fortune, so long far outranking all others..."

Astor, The Hon. John, M.P.
Astor, The Hon. John Jacob
Astor, The Hon. Michael

Lord Astor's personal castle in Kent, England, inherited from Pilgrim papa and Pilgrim grandpapa, who bought it in 1903---

This castle dates back to the year 1270. Anne Boleyn, second wife of King Henry VIII, spent her early years at this castle. Her father was the first Earl of Wiltshire (1477–1539) who was ambassador to the “Low Countries” (Belgium and the Netherlands); he was grandfather of Queen Elizabeth I (1558–1603). Of Gavin Astor’s grandfather, William Waldorf Astor, Wikipedia states--- “Upon the death of his father in 1890, Astor inherited a personal fortune that made him the richest man in America.” Most sources regard Rockefeller as the richest at that time; but certainly in terms of real estate and buildings, Astor was easily number one. Interior views of one of the Astor mansions in Manhattan at Fifth & 65th Street---

John Jacob Astor (1763–1848) was the main domestic power in the second United States Bank (forerunner of the Federal Reserve System; 1816–1836) and was allowed a slice of the Chinese opium trade, based on his being the top British collaborator in America. Astor was a confirmed gold and silver stealer---notes issued by this dishonest central bank could only be converted into gold or silver at the branch most distant from the issuing branch! Eleuthere Du Pont was the second wealthiest director of the second U.S. Bank after the departure of Stephen Girard. Vincent Astor (1891–1959; Pilgrims Society) took Franklin Roosevelt on a yachting excursion in February 1933. As soon as FDR entered the White House in March 1933, he declared a “bank holiday” and seized gold from the public! Strangely, The Pilgrims Society inner circle (including Astor) waited 17 months to use FDR to also seize silver, on August 9, 1934. That was just after the Silver Purchase Act of 1934, so FDR could shift some blame to Congress. Vincent Astor was a director of the silver suppressing Chase National Bank---

This link from 2006 mentions Astor real estate in Manhattan alone representing over $100 billion in wealth and as Myers noted on page 173 of his book, “No one but the Astors themselves knows what are their holdings in bonds and stocks of every description.” With an income stream of $5 to $10 billion per annum, a small family group could, especially at bottoms, acquire immense shareholdings. In “New York For Sale” (2011), page 38 we notice---

“In the nineteenth century, John Jacob Astor became the wealthiest man in the United States by investing in New York City real estate. Astor bought land cheap in the Panic of 1837, foreclosed on mortgages. Speculators have been falling all over each other trying to reproduce the Astor miracle ever since.”

It was plundering---not a miracle. As the main domestic power in the second United States Bank, and given the temptation involved combined with the feasibility of it, the prospect would appear probable that Astor had been buying choice real estate for over a decade and “paying” with it by bank notes printed by the second Bank of which he was the dominant director. He would most likely have used notes from the head office in Philadelphia, which could only be converted into specie by transporting them in person (“the bearer”) to the most distant branch in this case, the Mobile, Alabama branch!

4) Richard Milhous Nixon (1913–1994, Pilgrims as of March 24, 1969; page 141, “The Pilgrims of the United States,” short run book, 2003). On November 25, 1958, Nixon attended a meeting of The Pilgrims in London (page 196, “The Pilgrims of Great Britain,” short run book, 2002). This was the same Nixon whose Cost of Living Council capped the price of domestically mined silver at $1.61 the ounce and in August 1971, stopped dollar conversion into gold by foreigners (especially the French). Countless millions of words have been written about the Watergate scandal during the Nixon administration. In all that, so far as I’ve seen, not one word has ever been whispered about The Pilgrims Society---what it is, who its members were/are, what it is after, or just anything at all about it---anywhere in the public record---including the Congressional Record. Nixon probably entered the globalist network when he was enrolled in law school at Duke University, North Carolina (Duke family, Pilgrims Society, American Tobacco and other fortunes and key marriages to other Pilgrims society dynasties). His daughter

Tricia married Edward Finch Cox, son of Howard Ellis Cox (Pilgrims Society, with quite an old-line genealogy). Ed Cox is a partner in the high powered law firm of Patterson, Belknap, Webb & Tyler, which has had direct representation in The Pilgrims Society over the years. One of its law partners was Robert Morgenthau, son of Henry Morgenthau Jr, FDR's Treasury Secretary who looted 113,031,000 ounces silver from the public under the tyrannical Executive Order 6814 issued on August 9, 1934; Henry Morgenthau Sr., a wealthy real estate and insurance operator and ambassador, was a confirmed Pilgrims Society member.

Documentation? Here's 312 pages of it on FDR's gold and silver seizure from Americans, March 1933 into February 1937.

Nimitz (see scan below of others who were members in the "N" listings) was a Rear Admiral and in 1965 his superiors in The Pilgrims Society made him a director of Perkin-Elmer Corporation (until 1980) and was involved with Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, a "research" facility apparently active in facilitating seizure of seafloor mineral wealth by The Pilgrims Society. Nisonger is among the significant percent of members on whom information is sketchy at best; this hardly signifies they were of no consequence, but suggests added mystery. Nisonger "was president of a large auto parts company." General Norstad was Supreme Commander of Allied Powers in Europe (1956-1963) and was placed as an executive with Owens Corning Fiberglass corporation in 1964, being chairman (1967-1972) after which he remained as a director, and was on other boards---Abitibi Paper (Canada); McKesson & Robbins; RAND Corporation; United Airlines and Continental Oil (Conoco). Norstad was chairman of Eisenhower College and a trustee of Toledo Hospital (Ohio) and a director of the English Speaking Union of the U.S., a Pilgrims subsidiary. The 2003 Pilgrims book paints an intentionally mendacious picture suggesting the ESU has been in competition with The Pilgrims, when in fact it is no more than a kept slave of the far more powerful Pilgrims Society. Norstad, who was a Bilderberg attendee, held decorations including Order of the British Empire; Grand Cross, Order of Orange-Nassau of the Netherlands; and others from Portugal; Italy; West Germany; France; Belgium; Greece; Morocco and Luxembourg. Few Bilderberg researchers have mentioned The Pilgrims Society, because they never heard of it; or a few, because their conclusion as to the comparative status of the two groups was wrong due to unawareness of the power of The Pilgrims Society!

Nixon was a "Rockefeller Republican"---

Recall that just after Nixon resigned, Gerald Ford (Pilgrims Society) became President, and Nelson Rockefeller (Pilgrims Society) was APPOINTED to be vice president. Nixon had already appointed Rockefeller operative Henry Kissinger (Pilgrims Society) as Secretary of State---

From the 1974 Pilgrims New York roster---

Rockefeller, David
Rockefeller, The Hon. Nelson A.
Rockefeller, William

Nelson Rockefeller's death under bizarre circumstances has, like the Kennedy killing, generated all manner of theories. Any theory attributing their deaths to Pilgrims Society actions has a fair chance of being correct. The Pilgrims Society is not entirely monolithic in its actions. At the time of Rocky's death, there was a TV commercial featuring an opening with cannon fire and a person saying “Not now, I’m right in the middle of a Rothschilds,” which was actually a confectionary brand! It was therefore attributed by some that the Rothschilds counter-attacked and took Nelson out. What are the actual facts? I know as much as the next person; it is possible Nelson went down to another Pilgrims faction. It’s also possible that kid brother David made the decision to shut Nelson off. There is no good explanation as to why the delay in medical attention happened. All we know for certain is that not one of these characters has any scintilla of decency within them.

5) Howard J. Morgens (1910–2000, Pilgrims 1974 and other years) was top man at consumer products giant Procter & Gamble (1957 to 1974). He was a trustee of Washington University in St. Louis and Community Hospital of the Monterrey Peninsula (California) and a director of American Red Cross; Cincinnati Children’s Hospital; Owens Corning Fiberglass Corporation; General Motors; Standard Oil Company of New Jersey (now Exxon Mobil) and Morgan Guaranty Trust Company of New York. He once chaired the National Advertising Council, which brings up the point as to how The Society controls the news media---both by outright ownership, and by advertising patronage. In the 1870s, Standard Oil was supplying editorials to over 300 newspapers! Local news stations routinely broadcast hysteria over flu epidemics and beat the drums to herd all the small folks to go get a Big Pharma flu shot, because of these influences, and because of interlocking boards of directors, and also due to media companies having as their primary bank one of the shadier institutions. May I suggest instead, simple garlic tablets? I recently overcame an infection in six days with these, and realize had I doubled up on them the illness would have faded faster; “bugs” do not develop immunity against allicin in garlic, and the sulphur content is a natural anti-inflammatory. Like most Pilgrims members, Morgens didn’t include that detail in his Who’s Who listings. He was a trustee of the Monterrey Institute of International Studies, another globalist pustule on our national landscape. Another Procter & Gamble director during the Morgens years was Pilgrims Society member Robert S. Oelman, chairman of NCR, National Cash Register, which was financed by Dillon Read & Company (Clarence Dillon, Pilgrims Society). Oelman was a trustee of Dartmouth College; University of Dayton (Ohio); he was a founder in 1968 of Wright State University, also in Dayton; chairman of the tournament policy committee of the PGA, Professional Golf Association; and a close political associate of Nelson Rockefeller (Pilgrims Society). Oelman was a director of Koppers Company (Mellon family, Pilgrims Society); Ford Motor Company; and First National City Bank (now Citigroup). He married Mary Coolidge, perhaps a relation to President Coolidge. Procter & Gamble has sometimes been embroiled in controversy and accusations due to its unusual trademark---

6) Ellmore Clark Patterson (1913–2004; Pilgrims 1969, 1974, 1980) was another member who never disclosed this in any Who's Who volume; most do not (over 85%).

New York Magazine, January 10, 1977, page 37 boasted, "Patterson heads the class bank of the world."

The 1978–1979 Who's Who in America, page 2512, has this on Patterson---

PATTERSON, ELLMORE CLARK, banker; b. Western Springs, Ill., Nov. 29, 1913; s. Ellmore Clark and Harriet Emma (Wales) P.; grad. Lake Forest Acad., 1931; B.S., U. Chgo., 1935; m. Patterson's father in law, Arthur Osgood Choate, was the nephew of Joseph Hodges Choate, ambassador to England (1899–1905), an organizer of The Pilgrims Society and one of the Vanderbilt family's top two attorneys along with Chauncey Mitchell Depew as described in #2 Silver Squelchers, pages 73–78. In times past, the Rockefeller and Morgan interests---both Pilgrims Society factions---were seen as hot competitors to each other, yet here we see Patterson the top official of J.P. Morgan & Company, as a trustee of the Rockefeller controlled University of Chicago. The Association of Reserve City Bankers is a pirate organization of bankers in cities in which the Federal Reserve System has branches. Like most Pilgrims Society members in the U.S. branch, Patterson was an Episcopalian, otherwise known as Anglican, or Church of England, the religious system commandeered by King Henry VIII when he asserted Royal supremacy in England over audacious (and presumptuous) Papal interference.

Edmund F. Martin, Pilgrims Society, chaired Bethlehem Steel, of which Patterson was a board member; Martin was a J.P. Morgan & Company board member. Harold Holmes Helm, chairman of the admissions committee of The Pilgrims Society, was a Bethlehem Steel director, as well as a director of Chemical Bank, an alleged competitor of J.P. Morgan & Company. Both these banks were merged, with several others, into the present silver suppressing J.P. Morgan Chase colossus. John Anton Mayer, Pilgrims Society, chairman of Mellon Bank, was a General Motors director at this time, plus John T. Connor, who we reviewed in #8 Silver Squelchers.

Patterson was on the Presidential Commission on Financial Structure and Regulation, appointed by gold and silver antagonist Richard Milhous Nixon (Pilgrims Society). Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) of which Patterson was a trustee, has been a true bonanza gold mine for The Pilgrims Society, due to patents generated by funded technology research.

Some details on Patterson don't appear in this scan. In 1977 to 1979 he was a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Additionally he was a member of the Federal Advisory Council to the Federal Reserve System, in which role I have to think he looked after Vanderbilt family ownership in the central bank! He also was a director of Atlantic Richfield Petroleum; Nabisco; American National Fire Insurance; Warner Patterson Company; Great American Insurance; INCO, International Nickel Company of Canada; and Southern Pacific Railroad (1865–1996) which in 1996 merged into Union Pacific, a Harriman (Pilgrims Society) and Rockefeller (Pilgrims Society) interest. He was a trustee of North Westchester Hospital and the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace (warmongering). He was as of the 1974 Who's Who, a member of the New York State Banking Board, which was so neat! He could "regulate" himself and the activities of his fellow Pilgrims Society members running all the big New York commercial and investment banks! Notice that Patterson was a director of Canada Life Assurance Company; Allan Hazlett Lemmon was chairman of that insurance giant, and also chairman of J.P. Morgan Canada; Lemmon was chairman of the investment committee of Queens University (Who's who in America, 1978–1979, page 1930). In 1975, with Pilgrims Society kingpin David Rockefeller and Pilgrims Society member Walter Wriston of Citicorp, Patterson founded the Financial Community Liaison Group to "help" with New York City municipal finances. Patterson's father was involved with magazines, advertising, cameras and automobile lights and one morning "found 400 checks in his mail." Michael Ellmore Patterson, son of this J.P. Morgan official, was also with Morgan (1987–2009) and is or was a partner in Debevoise & Plimpton, a major Pilgrims Society law firm---he may easily be a member. Michael is a director of the Hastings Center for Bioethics; a trustee of the French–American Foundation; and a director of The Trust for Public Land, which considering the nature of the Pilgrims Society, reads like a damn shady enterprise!

7) Carroll Louis Wilson (1910–1983, Pilgrims 1974, 1980 and other years) was a major figure at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and on the national and world stage in engineering, nuclear power and natural resource “studies” (as we shall see, this man was a liar!)

Massachusetts

Technology

The 1974 Pilgrims New York roster shows Wilson a member of the Order of the British Empire, an outer circle organization to The Pilgrims---

Rockefeller Brothers Fund

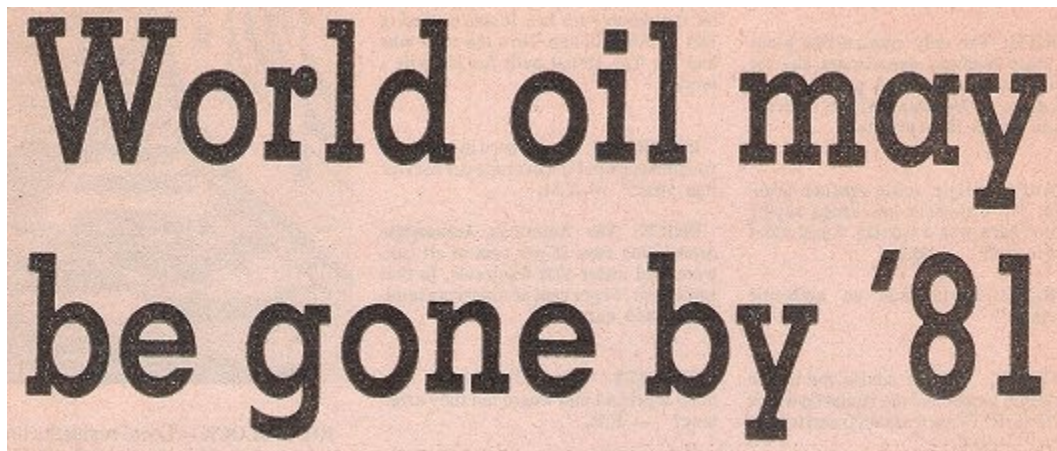

Philanthropy for an Interdependent World

Born in the city that became home to major Silver Users Association member Eastman Kodak, Wilson seemed destined to receive ever higher positions upon leaving the Office of Scientific Research & Development (OSRD) in 1946 and was catapulted into the management of the Atomic Energy Commission. You notice the word “Mitsui” in the scan. The Mitsuis (“three wells”) have long been known as “the Japanese Rockefellers” for their holdings in Japan’s leading banks and industrials and well represented in the Far Eastern section of the Trilateral Commission. However, the Rockefeller name is also in his scan, and undoubtedly he’s long been a family agent, and being highly placed, a membership in The Pilgrims was arranged for him. They had Wilson on the board of the important Council on Foreign Relations, misunderstood by many researchers as the top group in America because they had no awareness of The Pilgrims Society well hidden in the shadows up above. Though Wilson’s profession was engineering and science, The Pilgrims inner circle (Rockefeller faction) placed him on the board of Canada’s largest manufacturer of railway cars for passengers and raw materials transport---Procor. Hitchiner, a private company now employing 2,000, has offices in New Hampshire and plants in Mexico using robots and “produces castings in hundreds of different alloys for a broad spectrum of global markets and customers that include the leaders in the automotive, aerospace, and other industries.” Rhode Island Hospital Trust Bank merged into Bank Boston in 1985 which itself merged into Bank America (Pilgrims Society) in 1999. Millipore with 10,000 employees in 68 countries produces specialty filters for bioscience applications. Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution founded in 1930, is devoted to the study of “all aspects of marine science;” more likely, “to the monopolization of ocean and seafloor resources for Pilgrims Society members.” Current chairman of the Oceanographic facility comes straight from the Bank of New York (another likely Pilgrims member). Besides his association with Rockefeller Brothers Fund, Wilson became a Trilateralist (main Trilateralist---David Rockefeller, Pilgrims Society) and a member of Nelson Rockefeller’s (Pilgrims Society) Commission on Critical Choices for Americans. Wilson was active in a plethora of globalist entities---the OECD (Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development); the ECOSOC (Economic & Social Council of the United Nations); the hokey World Peace Foundation in Boston, a clone of the warmongering Carnegie Endowment for International Peace; and the Club of Rome, of which Wilson was the key member of its original six member executive committee. They put out several propaganda barrages including “Mankind At The Turning Point,” a philosophically toxic 1974 hatchet job on national sovereignty and

“The Limits to Growth.” The Club of Rome has 2 to 3 likely Pilgrims Society members on its current executive committee.

On May 16, 1977, the Associated Press (Pilgrims Society) released this Pilgrims Society sponsored fairy-tale spearheaded by Pilgrims Society member, Rockefeller family agent Wilson for frightening the small folks towards loss of national sovereignty and personal freedom---

World oil may be gone by '81

WASHINGTON (AP) — An international investigative team said today the worldwide oil crisis is alarmingly close and the conversion away from petroleum fuels must be pursued with “wartime urgency.”

“All our work can be boiled down to a single message,” said Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) Prof. Carroll L. Wilson, who headed the project.

“Otherwise, we face foreseeable catastrophe,” Wilson said.

“The critical interdependence of nations in the energy field requires an unprecedented degree of international collaboration in the future,” the project report said.

Using words like catastrophe to frighten people, demagogue Wilson, whose forecast proved to be horse manure---and he knew it was---showed his colors as a globalist by using phrases like “critical interdependence of nations” and “unprecedented degree of international collaboration.” Naturally The Pilgrims Society had multiple of its tentacles making the same noises---

THE NEW REPORT, produced by a team of 35 business, government and academic leaders from 15 non-Communist countries, parallels a CIA report released several weeks ago.

Like the CIA study, the new report said the world could begin running out of oil as early as 1981. It said the annual oil shortage in the free world will grow to between 15 million and 20 million barrels a day by the year 2000, close to the amount currently consumed by the United States.

The report followed a 2½ year study by the Workshop on Alternative Energy Strategies sponsored by MIT.

The report concluded the anticipated oil shortage will occur even though coal production is more than doubled, nuclear power multiplied 15 to 25 times, the historic growth rate in oil demand is cut by more than half and the price of oil rises 50 per cent.

"THE WAES STUDIES show energy conservation is essential," Wilson said in releasing the report. "Conservation may be our best, cheapest, most accessible alternative energy source.

"However," he cautioned, "changes in a country's energy-using system are inevitably slow. They happen neither overnight nor do they happen with ease. But happen they must."

The report said demand for energy will continue to grow even if free world governments adopt vigorous conservation policies.

"This growth must increasingly be satisfied by energy resources other than oil, which will be progressively reserved for uses that only oil can satisfy," the report said.

“THE ALTERNATIVES require five to 15 years to develop,” the report said, “and the need for replacement fuels will increase rapidly as the last decade of the century is approached.”

The investigators projected potential energy supplies and demands on a global basis and found serious shortages showing up after 1985 for the non-Communist world.

“These findings are a signal for action, not despair,” Wilson said. “Since the United States is by far the largest producer and consumer of energy, the actions we take — and when we take them — are going to have the greatest impact on the future economies of all nations in the non-Communist world.

“Time is our most precious resource,” he said. “It must be used as wisely as energy.”

This fountainhead of misinformation massaged the public as best he could, but failed. In spite of his 1981 oil depletion forecast, that was completely ignored in his obituary. It stated he became director of the United Nations Environment Program. He also headed the World Coal Study and the European Security Study and despite the fact that he disgraced his career with the hokey claim about world petroleum depletion by 1981, in 1985 an award was established in his memory for “outstanding students” to get a $25,000 fellowship. In “Undue Risk---Secret State Experiments on Humans” by Jonathan D. Moreno (2013), page 135 in the chapter titled “The Radiation Experiments,” Wilson was called “a pioneer in the field of nuclear power management” and “a member of the MIT Mafia that was so important in establishing America’s science policy.” Wilson as AEC manager “denied declassification requests.”

The Club of Rome founded in 1968 became another Pilgrims Society front with Wilson on its executive committee. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology called Wilson an “Activist on the World Stage” ---

8) William Armistead Moale Burden (1906–1984, Pilgrims 1957, 1969, 1974, 1980 and other years) had Vanderbilt (Pilgrims Society;

railroads, real estate and banking) ancestry and also Livingston ancestry. The Livingstons, an older dynasty than the Vanderbilts, are genealogically dispersed among more Pilgrims Society members than any other dynasty, so far as I have seen and at this point I don't expect that finding to change. Here's info he supplied to Who's Who in America, page 296, 1966-1967---

Observe his involvement with the Harrimans (Pilgrims Society) and another stalwart in The Pilgrims “war effort” and below under #11 in this review, we will see who Burden succeeded as ambassador to Belgium. He was an Allied Chemical director, headed by Pilgrims Society member John T. Connor, who we visited in #8 Silver Squelchers. Notice Burdens interest in aviation and aerospace; naturally, as another warmongering Pilgrims Society member, and it blends with his holdings in Lockheed Aircraft. The U.S. Citizens Commission for NATO was a scare group advocating the USA amalgamate its national government with that of the United Kingdom and the Western European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, with Russia as the bogeyman for the reason why our sovereignty should be eradicated. Along with this he was a director of the Atlantic Council of the U.S., a Pilgrims front that still advocates political reunion with England! Pilgrims Society vice president Henry Kissinger is an Atlantic Council director. If this reunification ever happens we'll discover the bitter truth that the British Monarchy are our rulers. American Metal Climax supplied raw materials to defense (aggression) contractors. With people like this Vanderbilt and Livingston relative in charge of the national news networks, small wonder why we never hear mention of The Pilgrims organization.

Burden was a long time director of the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR), The Pilgrims single most important subsidiary group. He was involved with Big Hospitals, Big Universities, Big Foundations and Big Organizations. He became an Allied Chemical director in 1962 when an \$800 million merger with Union Texas National Gas Corporation, of which he was a director, was completed. He was a member of the Republican National Finance Committee; donated an auditorium at Harvard University; and established a professorial "chair" at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. To get a picture of his monumental Vanderbilt ancestry, see #2 Silver Squelchers. The 1960-1961 Who's Who in America, page 410, shows Burden a director of Union Oil & Gas of Louisiana and Cerro De Pasco Corporation. “The Cerro De Pasco Corporation was for half a century the dominant force in Peruvian Mining. By the 1960s it had been joined by two other enterprises, Southern Peru Copper Corporation and Marcona, that together controlled 90 percent of the mineral output of the country. Cerro De Pasco was responsible for producing a third of the copper, two-thirds of the lead, and sixty percent of the silver and zinc as well as quantities of bismuth, of which it was the world’s largest supplier. In the mid-1950s it gained control of a portion of its rival, SPCC. By the end of World War II Cerro de Pasco was the biggest employer in Peru after the government itself. Cerro also owned a network of haciendas on which it raised sheep to produce milk, butter, and meat for local consumption as well as wool and meat for export. But much of the land utilized for sheep grazing had been acquired cheaply by Cerro after its mining operations had polluted the soil so badly as to make agriculture impossible, and the company later consolidated its grazing land by expropriating the property of local communities. Cerro was therefore accused of having created a pool of unskilled labor for itself by forcing local people off their land.” The 1974–1975 Who’s Who in America, page 434, shows Burden became a director of Aerospace Corporation, of which it today says of itself---

“For more than 50 years, The Aerospace Corporation has operated the nation’s federally funded research and development center for national security space. As the engineering arm of the United States

Air Force Space and Missile Systems Center, Aerospace provides objective scientific evaluation and analysis. “

In “David---Report On A Rockefeller” by William Hoffman (1971), page 101 mentions Burden’s chumminess with David. The book mentioned David’s Bilderberg activities, but apparently the author never heard of The Pilgrims Society. Old-line mega inheritor William Burden---

Bunker, The Hon. Ellsworth
Bunnell, C. Sterling

Burden, The Hon. William A. M.
Burger, Van Vechten
Burgess, The Hon, W. Randolph
Burgess, Wilfred Samuel
Burke, Admiral Arleigh, USN
(Ret.), N.C., D.S.M.

Ellsworth Bunker held interests in National Sugar Refining Company and was a director of Centennial Insurance and Atlantic Mutual Insurance. He was ambassador to Argentina (1951); to Italy (1962–1953); India (1956–1961); and Nepal (1956–1959); mediator of the Dutch/Indonesian dispute over Western New Guinea in 1962; U.S. representative to Organization of American States (OAS, 1964–1966); ambassador to South Vietnam (1967–1973) then ambassador at large. Bunnell chaired the credit policy committee of First National City Bank (now Citigroup) and was a director of Munich Management Corporation, Inspiration Consolidated Copper, BASF–Wyandotte and Siemens Overseas Investments. Burbank was a pioneer of the vaccine promotion movement to suck wealth from the public while making us sick, turning us into pincushions for Pilgrims Society gougers!

Burger became father in law of William H. Donaldson, who chaired the Securities Exchange Commission (SEC) in 2003–2005. Donaldson was a special adviser to Nelson Rockefeller (Pilgrims Society) and founded brokerage Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette (1959–2001). Wikipedia notes that Donaldson is a member of Skull & Bones Society of Yale University. No mention of course, as to whether he's in The Pilgrims also. His father in law, Van Vechten Burger was a 1926 Yale graduate and most likely a Bonesman or member of one of the other super-fraternities such as Scroll & Key, Book & Snake, Berzelius or Wolf's Head Society. Donaldson has been a director of Honeywell and Aetna Life among others. He was a trustee of Yale University and chaired the finance committee of the Ford Foundation; he chaired the warmongering Carnegie Endowment for International Peace (1999–2003) and is very likely a Pilgrims Society member. His father in law was a long time partner in the Wall Street firm of Pershing & Company; he was a trustee of Whitehall Fund and started in finance with Livingston & Company (the same Livingstons we've encountered over and over in this Silver Squelchers series). Burgess descended from a Hessian soldier (hired mercenaries) who came to fight against the patriots during the Revolutionary War! Another Burgess, of the International Banking Corporation, became president of the American Bankers Association and married a granddaughter of J.P. Morgan who was also a great-great granddaughter of British agent, Alexander Hamilton, a central banking activist! Admiral Burke, chief of naval operations during the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations, was placed on such boards as Texaco; Freeport Minerals; Thiokol Corporation; Foster Wheeler Corporation; Financial General Corporation; DuKane Corporation; United Services Life Insurance and Center for Strategic Studies (warmongering) of Georgetown University---

9) Albert Hamilton Gordon (1901–2009, Pilgrims 1957, 1969, 1974, 1980 and other years) was named as “one of the 10 most powerful men on Wall Street” in 1960 by Fortune Magazine. He was pals with

Armand Hammer of Occidental Petroleum, apparently never a member, but a notorious silver short who made $116 million on the downfall of the Hunt–Arab silver play in 1980. The link mentions Federal judge Harold R. Medina ruled in 1953, in a decision favoring Gordon’s Kidder, Peabody & Company and other Wall Street, Pilgrims Society investment banks, that they had not violated Federal law in their activities. Here’s judge Medina’s name in the 1957 Pilgrims roster---

Medina, Harold R.

Very predictably if your financier pals, who choose the United States President who appointed you to Federal judgeship, have you as a member of their Secret Society---you are most unlikely to ever rule against them! J.P. Morgan & Company took a position in Kidder Peabody during the 1930s. Albert Gordon was over the years on such boards as Carnation Company; Burlington Industries; Collins Radio; Haven Life Insurance; Commercial Credit; Container Corporation of America; Harris Intertype Corporation; FMC Corporation; Raymond International; Textile Banking Company; General Security Assurance; Deltec Asset Management; Allen Group; Overseas Private Investment Corporation; and in 1986 when Kidder Peabody was sold to General Electric (Pilgrims Society) he was chairman and a large shareholder. His father supplied the British Army with leather during World War One (“Pilgrim Partners!”) The 1974–1975 Who’s Who in America, page 1184, shows Gordon was a member of the governing committee of the Securities Industry Association; a director of the Center for Inter-American Relations (“North American Union”); a member of the board of managers of the Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases; Visiting Nurse Service of New York; and a member of the President’s Commission on Personnel Interchange, having to do with shuffling tax consuming parasites from one Federal agency to another! President at this time of the Center for Inter-American Relations was John Martin Cates Jr., of the Wolf’s Head Society of Yale and The Pilgrims, who said (verbatim) ---“I also believe strongly in international cooperation and the stark necessity of a one world society without national borders in the future” (page 578, 1980–1981 volume). Albert Hamilton Gordon, Pilgrims Society global financier---

10) Grant Keehn (1900–2982) had this info on page 1120 of the 1966–1967 Who's Who in America, like most members, no mention of The Pilgrims---

KEEHN, Grant, insurance executive; born at Kenilworth, Illinois, October 11, 1900; the son of George Washington and Jeannette Sophronia (Shipman) K.; A.B., Hamilton Coll., Clinton, N.Y., 1921; M.B.A., Harvard Grad. Hamilton College was founded in 1793 as a boys academy, and Treasury Secretary Alexander Hamilton, British agent and backer of the first (treasonous) United States Bank, was a trustee; the school was renamed Hamilton College after him in 1812. Another trustee was New York banker Irving Ives (Pilgrims Society) who went into politics and became Senate Majority Leader (1937–1946) during the critical World War 2 years and the founding of the United Nations.

G.N. Ry. Stands for Great Northern Railway; he was also a director of Burlington Northern Railway; G.D. Company of Chicago was probably General Dynamics; however, today GD is in Falls Church, Virginia, presumably so it can be closer to Congress for lobbying---it's the world's number five defense contractor (warmonger) in size. As a director of Equitable Life Assurance Society, Keehn certainly had input into the smashing of Howard Hughes over the seizure of his assets in Trans World Airlines and Hughes Tool Company by a syndicate of Pilgrims Society members (see #8 Silver Squelchers under Frederic H. Brandt for details!) Keehn was a megabank director---Chemical Bank, so named due to its link to the Du Ponts (Pilgrims Society), chemical industry dynasty, Silver Users Association members. Chemical Bank was one of the major tributaries that became the present J.P. Morgan Chase, top silver suppressor. Also notable is his association with Goldman Sachs, another premier precious metals price antagonist. Amerasia Petroleum was a second tier petro-giant, and see also his representation of the considerable Weyerhaeuser (timber and land) fortune in The Pilgrims Society. Keehn's son Silas we discover as of a 1994 document (looking back to October 22, 1987, after a record drop in the NYSE), to have been president of the Federal Reserve

Bank of Chicago at that time---a meaningful post to be certain, and held by the son of a Pilgrims Society member! We also find that Silas, before being placed at the helm of the Chicago Fed Bank, was with Mellon Bank (Pilgrims Society) in Pittsburgh for 23 years, becoming a board member. At the link to Silas we make additional discoveries---Grant Keehn, to quote the article, “was posted at the Chicago Fed during World War II as an Army officer making loans to military suppliers.” That detail the elder Keehn left out of his scan above; however, the time period referenced fits his other details. Raising the eyebrow more we notice that as of 1987, when Silas Keehn was president of the (anti-silver) Chicago Fed Bank, he had an important conference with Alger B. Chapman Jr., who at the time was chairman of the Chicago Board of Options Exchange! Alger Chapman Senior was in The Pilgrims leaked rosters for 1969 and 1974! Sons of Pilgrims members may or may not also become members, but in any case are candidates for assisting the planned orchestration of manipulations sponsored by The Society---

Chamberlain, Thomas G.
Champion, George
Chapman, The Hon. Alger B.

Thomas G. Chamberlain was a lawyer who campaigned for America to join the British controlled League of Nations; at age 30-31 he raised over $100 million for the organization of cotton growing and farmers associations across the South; he was counsel to Pacific Egg Producers Cooperative; Washington Cooperative Egg & Poultry Association; Sun-Maid Raisin Growers; California Peach & Fig Growers Association; Poultry Producers of Central California; trustee, estate of Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain); New York Infirmary; Booth Ferris Foundation, et cetera (Who's Who, 1966–1967, page 364); he was associated with the War Finance Corporation and the Republican National Committee. George Champion was a director of the silver antagonistic Chase Manhattan Bank; Kellogg; Pepsico; Discount Corporation of New York; American Smelting & Refining (ASARCO); Travelers Insurance; Southern Railway; International Paper; Greater New York Fund; Independent College Funds of America; New York Community Trust; United Negro College Fund; Community Blood Council of Greater New York; trustee, American Foundation for Religion and Psychiatry; (ha ha--- he was born in Normal, Illinois---Pilgrims Society members are “clinically normative,” precious metals activists are “clinically disordered”); former president, Association of Reserve City Bankers (bankers in cities where the Federal Reserve System has branch offices). As a Chase Manhattan Bank official, Champion would have had a hand in supervising the removal of silver coins from the nation's largest banking district, accommodating silver users for whom Chase provided banking services. Chapman Senior's father was named Hannibal; Chapman was chairman of Big Pharma viper, Squibb Corporation and a director of the Bank of New York, American Broadcasting Companies (ABC News), Bowery Savings Bank and was a long time trustee of Adelphi College. He married into the Ives family (Pilgrims Society, real estate and finance), was a partner in a law firm connected to the Delafields (Pilgrims Society, Bank of America) and died at Roosevelt Hospital in Manhattan, whose trustee board is always a hotbed of Pilgrims Society members!

Keehn, Grant
Kennedy, Moorhead C.
Kenney, F. Donald

Moorhead Kennedy was with Drexel & Company (Pilgrims Society) and Bank of New York (Pilgrims Society). His son was with the State Department in 1979 when he was seized and held hostage in Teheran, Iran, until 1981---and his wife was a member of the fabled old-line land fortune Livingston family (Pilgrims Society), which we have mentioned several times in this Silver Squelchers series. Her father, Goodhue Livingston Jr., was in The Pilgrims 1957 roster and described as “an independent investor;” the first Livingston arrived in America in 1673 and immediately became politically prominent; naturally after which his fortune bounded forward. Iran, formerly called Persia, has been heavily manipulated first by the British Empire, then later also by their “Pilgrim Partners” in America! According to this “Kenney devoted his life to international investment banking and served as chairman of Harriman Ripley International and chairman of Merrill Lynch International prior to becoming chairman of Goldman Sachs International Corporation from 1976 until his retirement in 1984.” He was a director of the International Council of Museums and a trustee of various other organizations. Actually it was Drexel Harriman Ripley he was an official of---the Drexel name traces to a mentor of the original J.P. Morgan!

11) John Clifford Folger (1896–; Pilgrims 1969, 1974, 1980 and other years) was ambassador to Belgium (1957–1959), a key European nation for reasons besides being the most important diamond processing hub in the world.

Other boards Folger was on---Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone; Burlington Mills; Deep Rock Oil Corporation; and Hiram Walker Gooderham & Worts, created by the merger of the two largest whiskey distilleries in Canada, although they also had antifreeze production; Dean Acheson, Secretary of State (1949–1953, Pilgrims Society) who played a major role in the creation of NATO, was an heir to that whiskey fortune through his mother. The World Banking Corporation (WOBACO) was a consortium of megabanks from the USA, Europe and Scandinavia which even at that time represented over $300 billion. Notice Folger left his Pilgrims Society activities out of his info; not that any casual reader would take special notice of it. The Folger Shakespeare Library in the District of Columbia, founded with money from the Folger Coffee fortune, apparently is connected to John Clifford Folger or his genealogy. Lady Westmacott is a current trustee of FSL and her husband, Sir Peter Westmacott (Pilgrims Society) is current British ambassador to these United States. She is an Iranian and her brother, Hassan Nemazee, got a 12 year sentence for bank fraud to the extent of \$292 million. Drug money laundering, arms trafficking, shady megadeals of every description---Pilgrims Society members will be hovering nearby with direct connections, yet it's others who take any fall! And the frauds of these respectable racketeers are many times the size.

Another FSL trustee is Pilgrims Society member John D. Macomber, who has been on such boards as Celanese Corporation; Chase Manhattan Bank; Florida Power & Light; Norlin Industries; Mirror

World Technologies; RJR Nabisco; Xerox; Textron; The Brown Group; Bristol Myers Squibb (“medications”); IRI International; Pilkington Ltd.; Export Import Bank; Atlantic Council; Banco di Caribe; Carnegie Institution of Washington; Lehman Brothers Holdings; Mettler Toledo; Rand McNally; Collexis and others; former trustee of Adelphi University and Rockefeller University.

PILGRIMS

He was yet another Pilgrims member involved in the administration of mining giant INCO and a member of the Canadian Mining Hall of Fame. As a trustee of Queen's University, he was close to the Royal family's inner circle, perhaps one step back from the Privy Council, which has nothing to do with an outhouse (but it should). Notice the large boards this member of The Pilgrims was on---a native Canadian, yet holding lots of cross-border influence---and a director of two megabanks---Toronto Dominion and Bank of New York! He was also a director of Gulf Oil Canada (Mellons, Pilgrims Society). Below, seen in The Pilgrims 1974 roster with two members of the Gould family (described in #2 Silver Squelchers). Samuel Gould, director of National Commercial Bank & Trust of Albany, was president of the Educational Broadcasting System, chancellor of the State University of New York, trustee of Teachers Insurance & Annuity Association, Kettering Foundation, Bates College, Wilberforce University, Thomas Edison Foundation, College of the Virgin Islands, and Broadcasting Foundation of America; he was “a close personal friend” of Pilgrims member Nelson Rockefeller. Peter Grace was the honcho at W.R. Grace & Company, a large diversified natural resources and chemicals multinational; and a director of First National City Bank, Kennecott Copper, Ingersoll Rand, Stone & Webster, Deering Milliken, Northern Insurance Company of New York, Miller Brewing, Atlantic Mutual Insurance, Brazilian Light & Power, Emigrant Savings Bank et cetera.

Oliver Russell Grace, a relation of Peter Grace, was a financier and a trustee of the Theodore Roosevelt Association. Oliver was a director of the Federal Grand Jury Association for the (financially infamous) Southern District of New York); he was with Grace National Bank, which transformed into the much larger Marine Midland Bank; he was on such boards as Virginia–Carolina Chemical Corporation; Foster Wheeler Corporation; Reeves Telecom; Great Neck Trust Company; American Distilling Company; American–Hawaiian Steamship Company; International Railways of Central America; New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad; Slattery Group; United Chemical; Republic Gear Company; Anderson Laboratories (chairman); Sterling, Grace & Company investment bankers (partner); president, New York Cancer Research Institute (“research” in how to milk the public of funds); he was also, with his relative Peter Grace, a Kennecott Copper director (a long time supplier of silver byproduct to Tiffany & Company, Silver Users Association members!) “Sterling Grace Capital Management had holdings in hundreds of companies.” Oliver Grace had a genealogy before and after him that I prefer to not touch! Grainger was associated with Chemical Bank and was a director of (among others) Fort Myers & Southern Railroad, New York Central Railroad (Vanderbilts, Pilgrims Society), Hartford Accident & Indemnity, Hartford Fire Insurance, American Manufacturing, Nichols Engineering & Research, Uni–Serv Corporation, Union Electric, and was “presiding trustee” of American Realty Investors. He was a trustee of Deafness Research Foundation (“how much would you give us PILL–GRAMS to be able to hear? How about your entire net worth?”) Mining exec Gordon, Pilgrims Society member, simultaneously director of two megabanks, ran with other ultra–powerful PILL–GRAMS---

The Pilgrims New York 1974 has a necrology for members who died during the interim of the 1973 roster being compiled. Clyde E. Weed is listed. He was chairman of the Anaconda Mining Company and president of the American Mining Congress. He was also president of the Copper Institute and was decorated by the government of Chile for having extracted boggling amounts of copper from the Chilean terrain and being a large scale employer. He was a director of other companies, some of which were Anaconda subsidiaries---Santiago Mining Company; American Brass Company; Continental Container Corporation; Chile Steamship Company; Portrerillos Railway; Chile Copper; Chile Exploration Company; International Smelting & Refining; Andes Copper Mining; Morgan Guaranty Trust Company of New York; and if this wasn't enough, he was also chairman of the International Copper Research Association.

13) James Gwaltney Westwarren MacLamroc (1905–1992, Pilgrims 1969, 1974, 1980–1992 and intervening years; may have become a member by 1958) authored a twelve page book, “Line of Descent from James G. W. MacLamroc Back to the Emperor Charlemagne.” Like the old royalty which many Pilgrims members are descended from, they feel entitled to control all the small folk's lives. Here's his unusual info listing many groups which you've likely never heard of, from Who's Who in America, 1976–1977, page 1983---

He earned a law degree at Yale, and he was probably invited to join one of the Yale super-fraternities; Scroll & Key; Book & Snake; Wolf's Head; Skull & Bones; or Berzelius. It's also possible he wasn't invited; no matter; he transcended them all by becoming a Pilgrims member. Besides income from law practice, broadcasting, residential subdivision development and possibly highway building contracts and whatever he inherited such as land, we have no clear picture of his wealth besides the suggestion of being markedly higher than average. When he starts listing groups such as Order of the Crown of Charlemagne, orders relating to the Crusades, Baronial

Order of Magna Carta, Plantagenet Society, Order of the Crown in America and the National Society of Americans of Royal Descent--- these are tip-offs that large amounts of wealth in land, castles, estates and other sources is in his historical, hereditary background in multiple family groups back to pre-medieval times. The Plantagenet dynasty (1154 to 1399 AD), having descendants in various members of The Pilgrims London (1902; leaked rosters, 1914-1980), "was a powerful family not just in England but throughout Europe. The first Plantagenet was King Henry II owned vast lands an area as big as Normandy. Henry's wife Eleanor ruled the even larger territory to the south called Aquitaine. Plantagenet kings were the richest family in Europe and ruled England and half of France." The Baronial Order of Magna Carta traces to 1215 AD and a coalition of several dozen powerful nobles who were satellites of the British sovereign. These dynasties also surfaced in members of The Pilgrims Society of Great Britain, and some fewer members in New York. The National Society of Americans of Royal Descent features people whose ancestors were European, Scandinavian and English nobility. All these groups were blindingly wealthy centuries before the rise of the Rothschilds. Common people and Jews were barred from owning land---Protestant princes and Catholics alike banned Jews from owning land, which is why Jews became so prominent in the diamond trade. Maclamroc additionally traced his lineage back to Charles the Great (Charlemagne, 742 to 814AD), who is known as the "Father of Europe," and both the later French and German monarchies considered Charlemagne to have laid their foundations. Besides his personal wealth, Maclamroc most likely represented at least dozens of others of royal lineage in The Pilgrims Society. Family groups typically have one or more members in The Pilgrims representing their interests, and often also non family members appointed to handle family business.

The Huguenot Society of America, managed by Pilgrims Society members, is another good evidence that The Pilgrims Society is largely Protestant. The St. Bartholomew's Day Massacre in August 1572 in France, was a Catholic attack on Protestants resulting in 3,000 to 50,000 deaths, according to various sources. Less than a generation later, in 1588, Vatican power was repudiated when the Spanish Armada was defeated in its attempted invasion of England. Tremendous wealth in gold, silver and gemstones was pillaged by the Crusaders from the Middle East, which was more of a motive than capturing the Holy Land.

Maclean was one of those strange cases I see occasionally when delving through these arcane lists. Maconochie was a World War II British general who resided in a mansion called "Zealandia" in Ashville, North Carolina; his father was a "director of public companies." Hartley's father and mother in law represented fortunes in coffee, mining and high finance. MacVane, a member of the Gargoyle Society of Williams College, was president of the Association of Radio and TV News Analysts; president of the United Nations News Correspondents Association; news correspondent for American Broadcasting Companies for the United Nations; National Bureau Chief for ABC News; member Society of Silurians (a group of “journalists” prostituted to megabankers); his two marriages appear interesting but confirmation hasn’t been achieved; he appeared strictly an outer circle member. Madden was a partner in “America’s oldest and largest private bank,” Brown Brothers, Harriman & Company at 59 Wall Street. He was a director of Freeport Minerals; Merchant Sterling Corporation; Orama Securities; Torsion Balance Company; Sterling Iron & Railway; Fuel Resources Inc.; Brooklyn Savings Bank; Brooklyn Union Gas; Mutual Life Insurance; Brooklyn Hospital et al. “Joseph Baird Magnus is well known in business and is affiliated with numerous chemical and allied clubs in New York.” His grandfather, Lucius Jeremiah Gartrell, was a brigadier general in the army of the Confederate States of America. Maitland, another apparent outer circle member, held other significant posts including deputy chairman of Independent Broadcasting Authority; chairman, Independent Commission on Worldwide Telecommunications Development; and director of Britoil (British National Petroleum) which merged into the much larger British Petroleum (Pilgrims Society) in 1988.

Some notes about Maclamroc’s business interests---“WKIX in Raleigh North Carolina was once one of the South’s most listened to radio stations. During its zenith in the 1960’s and 1970’s, there was hardly anywhere you could go in central and eastern North Carolina without hearing or being influenced by this powerhouse radio station.” Tri-Cities Broadcasting was a holding company for radio stations in California. Golden Strand Broadcasting was in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. British History Online, a division of the University of London, lists James G.W. MacLamroc as a member of the “London Survey Committee.” He is also listed in the “Records and Papers of Terry Sanford,” who was North Carolina governor (1961–1965) and a U.S. Senator (1986–1993). Current treasurer of the Order of the Crown of Charlemagne is Charles William Neuhauser, also a member of National Society of Americans of Royal Descent, Hereditary Order of Descendants of Colonial Governors, One Hundred Living Descendants of Blood Royal, Order of the Merovingian Dynasty, and The Pilgrims Society. His wife has Schuyler ancestry, dating to Dutch colonial times. Twenty years after the British recaptured New Amsterdam from the Dutch and renamed it New York, Philip Schuyler received large land grants; he was already very influential. According to the link on Neuhauser, “his career is in investment management.” Apparently he had a previous marriage, “a granddaughter of the late Baron and Baroness Werner Von Wallenberg of Baden–Baden, Germany. As of the 1983 link, Neuhauser was with Atlantic Capital Corporation subsidiary of Deutsche Bank. The Wallenberg marriage may be the same family as the famous group of Swedish billionaires, elsewhere represented in The Pilgrims Society. People are generally aware that in centuries past, royalty and nobility dominated the world. Few people are aware of their heavy handed continuing influence, however. The Merovingian Dynasty held sway over much of Western Europe, especially France, from 448 to 751 AD. This hereditary group tracing to old royalty, is interlocked with The Pilgrims Society (Charles William Neuhauser and probably several others including P.R. Livingston) ---

14) Joseph Irwin Miller (1909–2004, Pilgrims 1969, 1974, 1980) was touted as a Presidential candidate. Members are content to remain king-makers, though they have claimed the President as an “honorary” member. They control the nominating process of both the Democrat and Republican parties, and they have claimed the White House resident as an “honorary” member (see document at start page of www.silverstealers.net) ---

("Centra" in line 7 from the bottom should read "central.")

Other positions Miller held at various times, not shown in the scan include membership in the United Nations Commission on Multinational Corporations; trustee, Mayo Research Foundation; trustee, Urban Institute; the 1960-1961 Who's Who, page 2009, shows Miller was chairman of the Christian Theological Seminary; treasurer of the Christian Foundation; a trustee of the Taft School (named for the Taft political family of Pilgrims Society and Skull & Bones Society members); Miller additionally was a director of the Institute for Psychiatric Research. With psychiatry's "he is insane whom we so deem" attitude, naturally The Pilgrims Society has an interest in controlling this devastating tool for shooting down dissidents and those who call for genuine reform and a termination of gouging conspiracies bilking the public. We would inquire of Miller were he present---what manner of screw was loose in his head inasmuch as The Pilgrims Society was important enough for a mega-big shot like him to be a member of, yet he felt a compelling need to not have that detail in his biographical listings?

This Pilgrims Society member had input into several major entities in the financial scene---Chemical Bank; Equitable Life Assurance Society; and the Ford Foundation. The Ford family appears to have never had any direct genealogical connection to The Pilgrims organization; however, Ford Motor Company has had its share of members on its board. A.T. & T. of course as of 1974 had enormous revenues, and rolling together the other entities Miller was a director, executive or official of, you could say he had his hands on a half dozen major investment capital pools. Notice Miller's repetitive involvement with the resident of the White House. The Commission on Money and Credit, funded by the Ford Foundation (of which Miller was a trustee), existed from 1957 to 1961 and delivered a “report” to President Kennedy. It is alleged to have been the first such commission since 1908. Henry T. Heald (Pilgrims Society) was at that time president of the Ford Foundation. A sample of the deliberations of the CMC (page 120) shows Keynesian monetary equations, intended to confirm the status of their kept economists as geniuses for managing a fiat currency system to the “benefit” of the public. Other members of the CMC included David Rockefeller (Pilgrims Society) of the silver suppressing, gold antagonistic Chase Manhattan Bank and Frazar B. Wilde (Pilgrims Society). Below the next two images, some info on Frazar B. Wilde direct from “The Silver Stealers.” Joseph Irwin Miller, big wheel in Indiana and on the national scene, kindly looking, distinguished gentleman in standardized cookie cutter suit and tie uniform---felt it advisable to make no mention of his Pilgrims Society activities in printed media---

One of the plethora of artworks held by Miller went for $80.4 million http://kylecrawford.blogspot.com/2008_06_01_archive.html which undoubtedly was acquired for a tiny sliver of that sum.

Frazar Bullard Wilde, Pilgrims Society, chaired the anti-silver National Commission on Money and Credit. He was president of Connecticut General Life Insurance---Pilgrims Society members have a history of capturing control of huge pools of investment capital represented by insurance giants; the list is long. Wilde was a consultant in the early 1960's to the Federal Reserve Board, where he probably helped them plan sabotage against silver coinage and certificates---that would be in step with his known views on silver while running the Commission on Money and Credit. That commission was the first major investigative body into the United States currency system since the infamous Aldrich Commission, which recommended the central bank we got saddled with in 1913. In 1965 Pilgrims Society member Lyndon Johnson, anti-silver activist, appointed Wilde to the Advisory Committee on International Monetary Arrangements (what the hell was that about? Gold swaps and silver leasing? Maintaining dollar hegemony?) ---

According to <http://52weeks.rick> Miller was (condensed) ---

“A legendary figure---born into one of the most prominent families---his great grandfather started a dry goods store that transformed into a powerhouse regional bank, the Irwin Union Bank. Miller’s father was a professor at Butler University (of which Miller became a trustee) and dad went into the banking business. The family owned Purity Grocery chain (of which Miller later became a director). Miller became a manager at Cummins Engine Company in 1934 and worked his way up the ladder (with the aid of his ancestral inheritance) to eventually head Cummins Engine. He took it from a 60 employee operation to “a multinational Fortune 500 company with over 25,000 employees worldwide and $6 billion in annual sales.” (It now has over 47,000 employees and operates in 190 countries). He ran the Irwin Sweeney Miller Foundation, most likely a typical tax dodge allowed by the Treasury Department with woefully understated assets as is usual for such entities. In “The Rich and the Super Rich” by Ferdinand Lundberg (1968), page 428 states in regard to tax exempt foundations and referred to a Texas Congressman---

“Extraordinarily valuable properties are often carried on the books at $1. Patman concluded all foundations understate asset values.”

Returning to the summary of info on Miller from the link---

Miller was a personal pal of Nelson Rockefeller (Pilgrims Society) and he had 21 honorary university degrees (his bio-info expanded after the scan from the early 1970s volume); in 1989 Miller and his sister added $65 million of Cummins Engine stock to their holdings; he established the Cummins Engine Foundation in 1954; his wife was a director of Irwin Management Company and Tipton Lakes Company, a large real estate housing development; she was a trustee of the Indianapolis Museum of Art (tax dodge---an artwork is donated, and “experts” certify it as worth far more than it cost to acquire); Miller and his wife owned originals by Monet, Picasso and Matisse, and “the auction set records for a private art collection, nearly all of which was on display in their home.”

J. Irwin Miller also became a trustee of the Carnegie Institution for Science and was active with George W. Bush for President Campaign. His son William, possibly a Pilgrims member, developed a strong connection to the Warburg (Pilgrims Society) interests! As far as Miller’s apparent interest in the religious sphere, note his deep involvement with the globalist National and World Councils of Churches---fronts for the Anglican Church of England!

MEMBERS IN GREAT BRIT

15) Baron Leo Frederic Albert D’ Erlanger (1898–1984, Pilgrims London 1974 and other years) was of a family of bankers who came from Germany---same as the Rothschilds, Warburgs and Speyers---all Pilgrims Society dynasties. The Windsors or British Royal family, are of German origin also. On June 19, 1917, King George V, Royal patron of The Pilgrims Society and its twin branches, officially declared that the House of Saxe Coburg Gotha would henceforth be known as the House of Windsor, or the

Windsor family. This move of course was associated with World War I which largely pitted England against Germany. Having an ancestral homeland means little to globalist financiers. The Erlangers and Warburgs are related by marriage. Baron Erlanger supervised the start and early phases of the construction of the tunnel under the ocean connecting England and France by passenger vehicles. Considered the best engineering achievement of the 20th century, the undersea tunnel, the longest such tunnel in the world, measures 50 kilometers total length with 39 kilometers through the seafloor strata (over 24 miles) and also have “Eurotunnel locomotives” traversing the “Chunnel” at 140 kilometers per hour (87 MPH). His ancestor in 1851 took the reins of Greek Government finances and also had dealings with Portugal and Austria. He became involved with plans for the Suez Canal and became a partner in Erlanger & Company, private bank. In 1858 he married the granddaughter of a governor of the Bank of France, Florence Laffitte and opened a branch of his operations in Paris. Later he married the daughter of Louisiana Senator, former Presidential Envoy to Mexico, John Slidell, who owned large agricultural interests 90 miles from New Orleans. It’s widely known the Erlangers were involved with financing the Confederate States war effort, while the Belmonts, satellites of the Rothschilds, handled much of Northern war finance. Slidell was Confederate ambassador to France, and Erlanger met Slidell’s daughter in New Orleans, where Lazard Brothers was becoming prominent (another Pilgrims Society financial mega–powerhouse, described in #6 Silver Squelchers, pages 48–51). Surprisingly, the Erlangers aren't mentioned in Stephen Birmingham's 1967 book, "Our Crowd" about wealthy Jewish families in New York, as the dealings of these families was hardly limited to New York, and the Erlangers are very significant.

The original Baron D' Erlanger (1832–1911) became a prominent banker in Paris and "invented high risk bonds, especially for developing countries. He invested in railroads and mines in Africa, North America, South America and Europe as well as Russian and Tunisian government bonds and Southern cotton during the American Civil War. He financed the Simplon Tunnels between the Valais and Aosta Valley, then the largest railway tunnel in Europe. With Paul Julius Reuter (1816–1899), the founder of Reuters News agency, his bank, Erlanger Ltd., funded the construction of a French transatlantic telephone cable. Baroness D' Erlanger made the first historic first call. In 1889, during an inspection tour of their American railroad investments, the couple created the D' Erlanger Grant to build a hospital in Chattanooga, Tennessee. It is known today as the Erlanger Health System."

One of the Erlanger controlled railroads ran from New Orleans to Cincinnati; the Erlangers and Churchills (Pilgrims Society) are related by marriage. The Erlangers turn out to be yet another Pilgrims Society financial dynasty whose lineage connects to that of William The Conqueror (1028–1087). The connections to William are more numerous than I had previously thought. William, who is said to have been able to vault onto horseback while clad in armor, seized wealth reckoned in today's terms with estimates ranging to \$229.5 billion---

King William late in life mentioned “rivers of blood I have shed.”

In 1086 AD King William wrote to Pope Victor III informing him that England owed him no allegiance.

The first Baron D' Erlanger may have been a member of The Pilgrims of Great Britain; absence of detail between 1902 and 1914 blocks confirmation. He donated artworks for display in Hampton Court Palace, owned by the British Royal family, sponsors of The Pilgrims Society. Raphael Erlanger, father of Baron Erlanger, was also a banker and bucked the percentages by converting to Christianity. But what does Christianity actually mean to globalist financiers?

Baron Leo D' Erlanger, heir to a vast fortune from four continents in banking, land, buildings, cotton, mining, railroads, government bonds, communications and large scale engineering and construction ventures---

His father owned the “Palace of Ennejma Ezzahra” in Tunisia, North Africa---

The original Baron D' Erlanger also took over "Villa Foscari" in northern Italy---

Erlanger & Company was “active during and after the period of Reconstruction following the American Civil War.” Neat! Foment and finance wars, clean up also on the rebuilding effort (1865–1877) afterwards! In the twentieth century, other members of the Erlanger family have been directors of Moorgate Investment Trust; General Consolidated Investment Trust; and City International Trust Ltd. Another Erlanger headed British Overseas Airways Corporation. Wrapping up these notes on the Erlangers we add this info from 1863---

“150 years ago, the Confederacy, through its agents in the French banking house of Emile Erlanger & Company, marketed

$15,000,000 worth of Confederate bonds backed by cotton. Erlanger received the bonds at 77 cents on the dollar (i.e. 77% face value) and sold them in foreign financial markets at 90 cents on the dollar (90% of face). In addition, Erlanger received a 5% commission for selling the bonds. The bonds could be exchanged for cotton during and after the war at a price below the current market value. This feature of the loan was meant to encourage blockade running in order to redeem the bonds for cotton. The market value of the bonds went up and down dramatically during the war, reflecting the Confederacy's declining military fortunes. When the South finally lost the war the bonds became worthless, but by that time Erlanger had reaped huge profits. Erlanger & Company held no bonds by the time their value collapsed, and of their original $15,000,000 face value, the Confederacy had received only $6,000,000 to aid in the war effort.”

“Build on the bones of others” could be another motto for The Pilgrims Society.

“Honorable” (?) mention to conclude #9 Silver Squelchers--- Sir Eric Drake (1975 with the Queen) was chairman of British Petroleum. He descended from the family of Sir Francis Drake (1540–1596) who seized Spanish silver on the high seas in the sixteenth century---

1974 Pilgrims New York roster---

Wilson, F. Perry
Wilson, Walter W.
Wingate, Henry S.
Winslow, John Grenville
Winthrop, John
Winthrop, Robert
Witter, Jr. Dean

Perry Wilson was chairman of Union Carbide Corporation, a top tier member of the freeloading Silver Users Association. He was a director of megabank Manufacturers Hanover Trust, Continental Corporation (insurance holding company) and A.O. Smith Company. Walter Wilson see below in the scan. Wingate was chairman of INCO, International Nickel Company of Canada and a director of U.S. Steel; J.P. Morgan & Company; Canadian Pacific Railway; American Standard; Seamen's Bank for Savings; Society of the Chemical Industry (Paris) and was a member of the National Planning Association, which at that time sponsored the ominous sounding British North American Committee, which was another Pilgrims front. Winslow was an official of First National City Bank (now Citigroup) and his is among the few instances of an obituary mentioning The Pilgrims. The Winthrops of Boston, descendants of Massachusetts Bay Colony governor John Winthrop (1587–1649), described as “a wealthy English Puritan lawyer.” The Winthrops are related by marriage to the Aldriches, of the Rhode Island Senator who ramrodded the Federal Reserve Act through Congress---the Aldriches in turn are related to the Rockefellers, and the Winthrops have other genealogical marital links to the Bayards, Ripleys and Higginsons, all represented in The Pilgrims Society. Dean Witter Jr. was of course a famous Wall Streeter of Dean Witter Reynolds, which had over 33,000 employees when it merged in 2009 with Morgan Stanley & Company (Pilgrims Society). 1976–1977 Who's Who in America, page 3410---

WILSON, WALTER WILLIAM, investment banker; b. Washington, Kan., Dec. 19, 1905; s. Walter E. Wilson; B.S., U. Pa., 1925; M.B.A., Harvard, 1927; m. Helen Scudder, Aug. 16, 1933; 1 dau., Sandra S. With Continental Ill. Nat. Bank & Trust Co. of Chgo., 1927-37; with Morgan Stanley & Co., 1937—, gen. partner, 1945—. Trustee Com. Econ. Devel.; bd. dirs. Lilly Endowment Indpls. His wife Helen Scudder was of the Scudder, Stevens & Clark Group in Boston which in 1997 sold for $2.5 billion and as of this 1997 story, had $120 billion under management. Morgan Stanley & Company, founded in 1935 by Pilgrims Society members Harold Stanley and Henry Sturgis Morgan, third generation Pilgrims Society member and grandson of the original John Pierpont Morgan, is known as a silver market price suppressor who has also discouraged people from the business of holding their own silver---instead trusting investors got empty storage! The Lilly Endowment in Indianapolis based on stock from toxic, dangerous pharmaceutical colossus Eli Lilly & Company, held assets of $7.2 billion as of 2012. W.W.W. then was indeed another "PILL-GRAM"---pushing dangerous Pharma "medications" and profiting from stealing grams of silver! Right, he wasn't around when Morgan Stanley got caught stealing silver---but he'd have OK'd it with a hearty guffaw! Notice Wilson was with a major Chicago bank when in spring 1933 President Roosevelt ordered gold seized from Americans. Did Wilson go around to the safe deposit boxes and withdraw people's gold in that theft?

Some other 1974 members---

Barry T. Leithead---chairman, Cluett, Peabody & Company; director B.F. Goodrich; Trans World Airlines; Virginia Pulp & Paper; Travelers Insurance; Manufacturers Hanover Trust; National Dairy Products; Electric Bond & Share; Kraftco Corporation Foods; trustee St. Lawrence University and Eisenhower College. Leithead was another Pilgrims member placed on the TWA board after The Society deposed Howard Hughes first from control, and later from ownership of, TWA, as detailed in #8 Silver Squelchers

Olcott Damon Smith, chairman of Aetna Life & Casualty Companies; director of defense contractor (warmonger) United Technologies Corporation; Emhart Corporation; Morgan Guaranty Trust Company of New York; Connecticut Water Service Company; Suburban Water Company; Hartford Courant Newspaper; Hartford Electric Light; American Hardware Corporation; Avis Inc; Hartford Hospital; Hartford National Bank & Trust; Dime Savings Bank; New Britain Machine Company; Yankee Atomic Electric Company; member, Royal Society of Arts, London.

Richard S. Reynolds Jr., chairman Reynolds Metals; director, British Aluminum; Manufacturers Hanover Trust; Central National Bank of Richmond; Manicollagan Power (Quebec, Canada); Lawyers Title Insurance; Richmond Corporation; Robertshaw Controls Company; Eskimo Pie Corporation; president, The Aluminum Association; member, national minerals advisory council to Department of the Interior; during World War II, member Aluminum and Magnesium Industry Committee of the United States Munitions Board and member, Inter-Agency Committee on Military Contractor Relationships. From 1948 to 1963, Reynolds Metals assets increased from $114 million to over $1 billion. Reynolds & Company, his Wall Street firm, merged with Dean Witter to become Dean Witter Reynolds; he was a pioneer of the aluminum beverage can.

William S. Renchard---director, Chemical Bank New York; Cleveland Cliffs Iron; Amerada Hess Corporation; Baldwin Securities; Foote Mineral; Armstrong Rubber; C.I. Realty Investors; New York Life Insurance; Consolidated Edison Company of New York; Borden Company; Ward Baking Company; Vanadium Corporation; President, Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital; trustee, Animal Medical Center of New York; chairman, New York City Citizens Budget Commission; governor, United Nations Association of the U.S.; executive committee, New York Chamber of Commerce & Industry; advisor to New York State chapter, American Institute of Banking; executive committee, United Student Aid Funds; governor, Investment Bankers Association of America; advisory committee, American Bankers association; chairman of committee on finance and currency, United States Chamber of Commerce; governor, The Pinnacle Club. On March 18, 1965, Renchard had this conversation with President Johnson (Pilgrims Society). Renchard succeeded Harold Holmes Helm (Pilgrims Society, admissions committee chairman) at the top post in Chemical Bank; Renchard was succeeded by Donald C. Platten (Pilgrims Society), who acquired a Vanderbilt (Pilgrims Society dynasty) as a son in law in 1986! The Roosevelts (Pilgrims Society) were significant shareholders in Chemical Bank before the start of the 20th century.

General Sir Ronald Forbes Adam, Baronet, Order of the British Empire, was an important British military figure in both World Wars and afterwards became chairman of the executive board of UNESCO---United Nations, Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. The General saw action in India. His father “was a British banker who made his fortune in British India. He was president of the Bank of Bombay.” Naturally his father was involved in the opium for silver business. “Opium City---The Making of Early Victorian Bombay” (2005) is a book on the dismal subject. The Forbes portion of his name is very likely connected by genealogy to Forbes family members who’ve been Pilgrims members across the decades in both branches---including Steve Forbes, second generation member and advocate of a bogus gold standard system!

Geoffrey C. Seligman, Pilgrims London 1974, associated with British American Tobacco and S.G. Warburg & Company, son of Pilgrims Society member Sir Charles Seligman. Geoffrey had a meeting with President Jimmy Carter. In “Our Crowd” (1967) by Stephen Birmingham, page 138 describes the start of the Seligman alliance with the larger Rothschilds---an alliance that also included the Belmonts and the J.P. Morgan interests. Page 139 states---

“The Seligmans were now participating in the most powerful financial combination in the history of banking.”

Isaac Seligman, big time financier, was in the 1914 Pilgrims New York roster and is described in #2 Silver Squelchers, pages 60–64.

Sir Charles Mansfield Tobias Clarke, Baronet was a vice president (1963–1980) of Bankers Trust New York and from 1992–1994 a director of Swiss Bank Corporation London; underwriting member (1984–2001) Lloyd’s of London; his grandmother was a Roosevelt, leaving him related to two of our worst Presidents, especially the gold and silver stealing FDR.

Anthony Brooks Firestone, heir to the Firestone Tire & Rubber fortune, appeared in The Pilgrims London 1974 roster. He owns vineyards in California, a beer brewery and the San Antonio Ranch, a 26,000 acre holding in California that has had such guests as Ronald Reagan (Pilgrims Society). Firestone’s father was a director of the Los Angeles branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco and was a trustee of the University of Southern California (page 946, 1960–1961 Who's Who in America). Another Firestone was a director of Wells Fargo Bank and Bank of Monrovia (Liberia, West Africa). Poppa was also president of the Richard Nixon Foundation (Who's Who in America, 1974–1975, page 994). Arden Firestone (same reference) another family member was beginning in 1968, a director of the supposedly competing Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company! The Firestones have been involved with the American Ordnance Association (selling military hardware to the Pentagon!) Anthony Brooks Firestone, Pilgrims Society member for at least 40 years---

We should sometimes ask ourselves---have we given up?
