

Public Officials, Popcorn, and Gold

I’m out of popcorn!” ---the “Rockford Files”
October 20, 1978

Have any of you had experience with contacting public officials? Have you been stonewalled, shined on, treated like an uncomprehending child, dismissed, ignored, had the subject changed, and noticed how they dodge issues like ball bearings in an arcade machine? Do you get the impression they’re owned by whoever donates the largest sums to their campaigns? I’m bitterly cynical about contacting public officials but I’ve regularly done it just in case I might find someone without the usual paternalistic attitude towards the public. Such officials are snow in July phenomena. I've written to many Capitol Hill officials and some state officials without result. On September 29, 2003, I contacted Drew Edmondson, the Oklahoma State Attorney General about the COMEX metals crime as he had a rep for guts since he went after the World Com crooks for damaging residents of Oklahoma. He took no action on my inquiry despite the fact of residents of his state being routinely ripped off in COMEX silver calls! I did receive an evasive reply on fancy stationary with an awesome foil emblem. World Com who he went after was one thing, taking on the metals suppression makes that look tiny! Consider how since 1975 the Commodity Futures Trading Commission has responded with disclaimers, repudiations and denials about the naked shorting of precious metals. It isn't that everyone in the national and state government is bought off. Sometimes fear of repercussions causes them to take no action. The bought off and the fearful alike kick cans down the road. And guess what! The Oklahoma Attorney General's father, Edmond Edmondson was a Congressman from the same state and he voted FOR the Coinage Act of 1965, removing all but the 40% Kennedy half dollars from silver coinage production, and putting us on cupronickel!

You never know who you're complaining to when you contact a state or national public official, and what their background is!

Edmondson's pop was also with the FBI, 1940 to 1946. There are so many skeletons in public officials closets they had to expand their closets. I figure Edmondson's daddy conveyed his anti-silver prejudice to junior, explaining that if he wanted to boost his career, for God's sakes don't do anything for silver!

Sometimes you get no action because they're simply---dense. I like the line from former pro-wrestling manager Jim Cornette, "If I put your brain in a flea's stomach, it would rattle around like a BB in a boxcar."

In fall 2006 I wrote another Texas politician (besides the more recent one I'm about to disclose), U.S. Congressman Joe Barton about abusive COMEX silver shorts. He purported to have contacted the CFTC and his terse reply was "They know of no malpractice in the pricing of silver." He was on the take from the Du Pont Good Government Fund (silver users)! It's looking like our country is more corrupt than Rome under Caligula. Barton recently got money from Silver Eagle Distributors, which is a beer distributor! Barton is associated with the Textile Museum in DC located on---Du Pont Circle.

I also contacted Kentucky Senator Rand Paul asking he consider legislation to restore the former 165 million ounce strategic silver stockpile. He wiggled away from the issue and said the national silver needs could be addressed other ways! He knew that such a bill would arouse his enemies tenfold over their current activities. See---even those we hold in higher regard place limitations as to how far they'll go towards correcting wrongs! On April 9, 2013, Rand told me---

“Thank you for taking the time to contact me regarding the creation of a national silver reserve. I appreciate hearing your thoughts on this issue. At this time, no legislation has been introduced in the 113th Congress that would create a strategic stockpile of silver. While there may be good reasons to ensure sufficient access to some elements, given our government's fiscal situation, I believe that more cost-effective approaches (such as removing the obstacles to domestic resource development faced by producers) should be considered first.”

Friends, I didn't ask Rand if there was any such legislation at that time! I asked HIM to make an attempt and he has allies in the House of Representatives! He cited “our government's fiscal situation” as a reason to not seek such a restorative bill! That's no excuse, they just keep raising the debt ceiling. He had to know that a bill like that would destabilize the COMEX silver price cap! That would be great for America, as it would be a giant stride towards lawful Constitutional money! Andrew Jackson would have sided with me on this one, not with the “careful” Senator Paul. It wouldn't constitute any blow against “removing the obstacles to domestic resource development faced by producers” to intro a silver stockpile restoration bill! To the contrary, it would create tremendous upwards pressure on the silver price, and THAT would “remove the obstacle to domestic resource development faced by producers.” How can they mine and process ore that's presently unprofitable due to the COMEX price cap? Rand Paul is a great debater. He fell flat on his Senatorial face on this one. We still need public officials who will go all the way and he let his Kentucky constituents down. In the Andrew Jackson administration the “Bank Wars” were at their peak, and the General said he was getting “one or two anonymous letters every day threatening me with assassination,” this was because he pulled no punches and always went 100% all the way. Can you picture the hell that would have broken loose in the Republican debate if Rand Paul had said anything about The Pilgrims Society rigging gold and silver prices? No, Rand won’t go all the way. He also waffles on vaccines! If a chocolate cake was like people, you’d want to avoid the areas that contain little screws and wood splinters. Senator Paul, a quotation from the depression era (New York Times, December 30, 1931, page 18) ---

“The truth should be recognized that the whole world would profit in a revived price for silver.”

To borrow an expression I once read Butler using about the CFTC, “this dog won’t hunt.”

This write-up has to do with a failed attempt I made to nudge two Texas state lawmakers to take immediate action regarding the recovery of Texas owned gold from the Wall Street hell hole. They crafted a bill for a state gold depository and in addition to holding state owned gold; they apparently intend to reintroduce gold and silver into the payments system where they've always belonged. A whole generation of Americans has been indoctrinated by "educators" to think of gold and silver as jewelry rather than as money and of course, if in jewelry form, they are unsuitable for use as money. Stall jobs by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York regarding German owned gold have had me simmering at a low boil since January 2013 when Germany was told "you can have your gold back by 2020." Many lies and BS statements were made, including allegations of logistics problems getting the gold across the ocean. Heavier copper ingot shipments go on all the time. COMEX gold should have surged past $4,000 within three days of that infuriating NYFED announcement. In the 911 attacks, around 40MOZ silver became temporarily unrecoverable, and some of you will remember that the COMEX short colluders rushed to pile on more short sales to block a price rise!

German Bundesbank officials ridiculously stated in fall 2012---
"It's sensible to store part of the reserves outside the country so they can be swapped more easily for foreign currency in an emergency."

Oh? Gold and other precious metals can't go broke, but currencies can and do go broke. Sensible folks would want to store as much as possible of what can't go broke inside their own borders. What use is foreign currency if currencies are fading to zero? The New York Times, July 17, 1929, page 2, reported that the Belgian National Bank in Brussels was planning to BURN 125 boxcars full of the German fiat paper currency notes from the 1923 inflationary crisis. I suspect this current folly on the part of key German officials has a great deal to do with string-pulling by the American Council on Germany, which organization we'll get to shortly. What's needed in a monetary crisis is GOLD---not wallpaper currencies or their digital equivalents. Gold and silver are universal currencies that can't go to zero, in contrast to the "prosperity coupons" recklessly printed or digitally created by central banks.

A typical adverse news source, Bloomberg, remarked about what the FED would regard as "misguided" Germans---

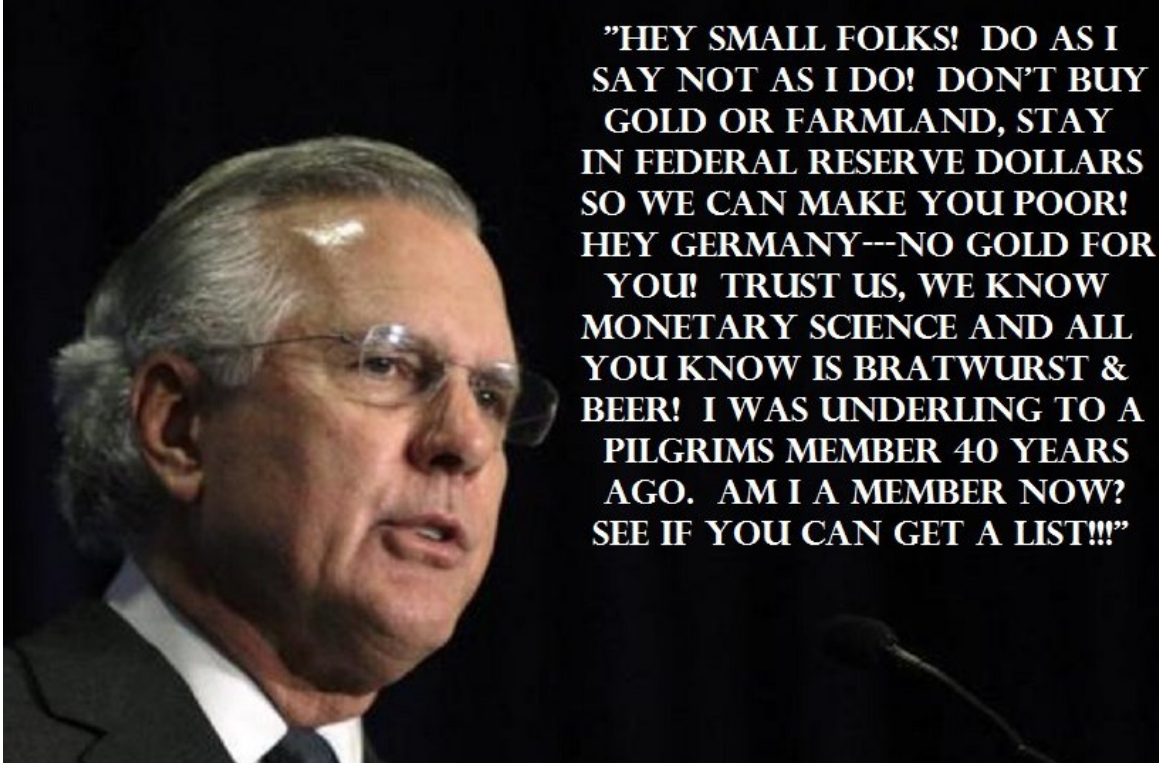

“Peter Boehringer is a gold bug, a member of the impassioned tribe of investors and academics who distrust central banks and paper money, unless the governments that print it will exchange the cash for gold or silver from their vaults. He has an asset management firm that invests his own money and that of clients in gold, silver, and mining stocks, and he’s a founder of the nonprofit German Precious Metal Society, which educates the public about “the craziness of unbacked monetary systems.”

The Port of Hamburg is the second busiest port in mainland Europe after Rotterdam. Hamburg sees over 140 million tons of cargo per annum. Logistics? The U.S. Navy could escort German ships with large payload capacity from New York to Hamburg. It appears that the noise volume of interference and distraction has been turned to full blast, squelching German voices insisting on faster repatriation of their gold. The American Council on Germany was founded in 1952 by Rockefeller family associate John Jay McCloy (1895-1989) who was head of the World Bank, Chase Manhattan Bank and so much more in his bio! If you’ve followed the Silver Squelchers series you know how detailed I can get. A profile on McCloy would be a book as he was a major hitter and in his time, the top Rockefeller agent outside of family members themselves. McCloy was named High Commissioner over Germany by President Truman. Currently the American Council on Germany shows John Jay McCloy II a director. His father was a member of The Pilgrims Society for many years and he most likely inherited that slot. Rockefeller family agent Henry Kissinger, a member of at least 41 years standing, is an ACG director, as is another confirmed member, gold and silver antagonist Paul Volcker, who played a lead role in wrecking the Hunt-Arab silver play. Also a director of the American Council on Germany is Richard Fisher, ex president of the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank, known to have bought gold for himself to the extent of $1 million at 2012 prices, and owns some physical platinum, uranium interests, and farmland (7,000 acres) in four states.

Richard Fisher was born in Los Angeles but grew up in Mexico. His father was an Australian and his mother was a South African of Norwegian ancestry. A true globalist background and we'd hesitate to know what his father was into and why he was in Mexico growing up. Did it have to do with silver suppression?

During 1975 to 1977 Fisher was assistant to Robert Roosa (Pilgrims Society) at Brown Brothers, Harriman & Company at 59 Wall Street. This is the same Robert Roosa who said "Any attempt to write up the price of gold would assuredly be matched, within hours, by comparable and offsetting action." For details, see "Who Controls the Gold Stealing New York Fed Bank?"

"HEY SMALL FOLKS! DO AS I SAY NOT AS I DO! DON'T BUY GOLD OR FARMLAND, STAY IN FEDERAL RESERVE DOLLARS SO WE CAN MAKE YOU POOR! HEY GERMANY---NO GOLD FOR YOU! TRUST US, WE KNOW MONETARY SCIENCE AND ALL YOU KNOW IS BRATWURST & BEER! I WAS UNDERLING TO A PILGRIMS MEMBER 40 YEARS AGO. AM I A MEMBER NOW? SEE IF YOU CAN GET A LIST!!!"

What are gold price suppressors and those hostile towards gold remonetization doing owning gold themselves, and why are they in an organization concerned with the internal affairs of Germany? I submit this group exists to suppress the gold repatriation movement in Germany, among other things. Also a director of ACG is none other than Marie M. Warburg (“warthog”) of the same family that had major input into the creation of the Federal Reserve. This ACG is also involved with pharmaceuticals! Deny Germany its gold, poison and sicken its people appears to be the agenda. This ACG has so-called “Warburg Chapters” in 20 USA cities!

The Texas Tribune, March 21, 2013, quoted then Governor Rick Perry on Texas owned gold (stored by the Mature, Wise and Worthy New York Bankers) ---

“If we own it,” Perry said, “I will suggest to you that that’s not someone else’s determination whether we can take possession of it back or not.”

This is the same Rick Perry who attended a Bilderberg meeting in 2007. The problem of metals suppression isn’t in Bilderberg; it’s in The Pilgrims Society as you know if you’ve followed my research. People holler about Bilderberg yet it puts lists out while The Pilgrims don’t. They don’t because this is the globalists last hiding place and it holds the management reins of the other groups! Bilderberg is there as a distraction from the deeper problem.

Office holding politicians usually are loath to take any public stand on the most important issue we face which is the nature of money itself. A rare exception was Florida Governor Claude R. Kirk Jr. (1967 to 1971) as described in the May 2010 release, “Florida Governor Laughs At Paper Gold!” It was in 1968 while he was Governor that he delivered two speeches ridiculing the $35 gold price as legitimate and in fact, that was the year the London Gold Pool gave way to world demand. Visiting Kirk’s biographical information in the 1970-1971 Who’s Who in America, page 1245 shows he was with Hayden Stone investment bankers during 1960 to 1964. He was an Episcopalian and a trustee of American University in Monaco and a member of the Financial Analysts Society. He had these connections at the periphery of The Pilgrims Society and yet wasn't with their gold antagonistic price policies. It may have been a case of they felt he was trustworthy to be a Governor and turned out otherwise. Time Magazine, December 15, 1967 had Kirk describing himself as "a tree shaking son of a bitch!" We need more like him. We need people in office who will go all the way and refuse to pull any punches.

On this matter of pulling punches and declining to stick their necks out all the way, I received a disappointing email response on October 27 from the person who organized Texas House Bill #483 regarding what we can call the Texas Gold Bank. This was Giovanni Capriglione messaging me---

"Thank you for the note. I expect that the depository will be completed sometime next year. While bringing Texas gold back home is an indirect byproduct of the bill, the full realization of the bill goes much further than that. I expect individuals to be able to make payments/transfers using gold/silver deposits for everyday purchase."

Capriglione knows that if Texas made immediate demand for return of its gold, say a one month deadline, it would sharply increase the stress on the Federal Reserve, COMEX, and HSBC Bank, which was England's opium bank for China, by which untold thousands of tons of silver was drained out of China. He also has got know that the longer Texas officials wait to tell the dirty bankers to cough up the gold, the more the chances the gold will be gone overseas. This man with a tremendous piece of legislation is nevertheless kicking the can down the road. There's going to be an irrepressible scandal in any case. I conclude he wants someone else to be the focal point of its ignition. If I were in his place I'd insist on its immediate return even if it meant potential assassination. He's already well into a forbidden zone with the megabankers, why not go all the way? Declaring that getting Texas owned gold back is only "an indirect byproduct of the bill" is an embarrassing minimization of the importance of that gold. I'd personally be red faced if I'd made such a trivializing statement. Texas residents should nag their representatives to take immediate action. Have any Texas State senators and representatives attended a session of the Warburg Chapters of the American Council on Germany? Dallas is afflicted with one of these monetary cancer nodes!

A similar inquiry to another Texas State representative who also voted for THB #483 has been refused response. This other state representative has a high profile as being afraid of nothing, yet this lion's mouth he shies away from placing his head into, so to speak. See, asking people to go all the way in doing what's right---is just one step too far out on the banker's plank! "Texas President Sam Houston and Silver," released in November 2010, would school some of these reluctant do-gooders.

When the depository is completed “sometime next year” (stall some more, make it the last week of December 2016) Texas officials should explain to state residents why all they have from New York to put into the vaults is some sort of hokey COMEX gold receipts! Would bales of hay be just as good? Now---oh God! We find in the Texas Tribune of October 30, 2015 this item about Glenn Hegar, the Texas State Comptroller of Public Accounts---

“Along with ideas on the depository’s design, Hegar requested thoughts on whether the state should vie for membership in the Chicago Mercantile Exchange’s COMEX platform, where gold futures contracts are traded. The question is crucial to whether Texas will be able to achieve a widely reported declaration by Abbott’s office in June that Texas would “repatriate $1 billion of gold bullion from the Federal Reserve in New York to Texas.”

Abbott refers to Greg Abbott, the current Republican Governor. That question on the part of the comptroller shows that Texas is on the way to being sunk again by the gold repressors. YES, gold futures contracts are traded on the “COMEX platform,” but little real gold is delivered. Why would anyone continue seeking relationship with demonstrably thieving elements? This is supposed to be about GOLD and physical custody of GOLD, not about lousy futures contracts that are an excuse to repress the return of GOLD as money! It's as if a convention of municipal fire department chiefs requested their programs be managed by a panel of arsonists! Can you believe it? There's no end to these bald faced outrages! Trusting COMEX with gold is like trusting your teenage daughter to a wild eyed monster in a cell block.

Have another read of those three lines from the Texas Tribune! What in hell's name does Texas subordinating itself to the COMEX have to do with repatriating gold from the Federal Reserve in New York? Or from HSBC? What is crucial about Texas connecting to COMEX tentacles in order for the gold to be returned? The story writer built into his story the false definition that linkage to the COMEX is necessary, as if the gold would just turn to Texas manure otherwise. I notice the writer has a degree in psychology from New York University (gold suppressors are trustees) and a typical economics degree. How many university economics departments teach anything besides central banks and paper money (now electronic dollars)? Gold still can't be created, nor silver, and the money creators and their bastard economists want to continue creating money because that's a merry go round too rewarding for them to allow seeing it be stopped!

More from the news item---

“The new law does not require UTIMCO to move its gold to the state’s depository. UTIMCO has said it will only do so under two conditions: that it cost less to store the gold in Texas than it does in New York and that the depository is a member of COMEX.”

UTIMCO stands for University of Texas Investment Management Company. UTIMCO is in with the metals price suppressors as you see at their site in their directors brief bios http://www.utimco.org/scripts/internet/board_members.asp

THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS
INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT COMPANY

Ardon Moore, vice chair of UTIMCO, is president of Lee Bass Incorporated (Fort Worth). Moore is an Episcopalian and that combined with him being high in financial affairs, sinks him as to trustworthiness. The Basses have been called “the New Rockefellers” and in fact, David Rockefeller was once in Fort Worth at a Bass sponsored event. Robert M. Bass is currently a Rockefeller University trustee and has been for many years. Moore is an advisor to the Red McCombs School of Business at University of Texas at Austin. McCombs is a San Antonio based billionaire in auto dealerships and other enterprises. I have no particular info on Red besides this it's hard to imagine a man rising to billionaire status without being in on the globalist plan. Moore has also been involved with Stanford Business School. We need business schools but most are infested with globalists---Stanford is a notable example.

William H. McRaven, chancellor of the University of Texas System, is a UTIMCO director. He attended Roosevelt High School in San Antonio, named after the great gold and silver stealer, FDR. I consider him prospective for membership in The Pilgrims Society due to he was a Naval Admiral (frequently become members) and "he was routinely involved in national policy decisions during both the Bush and Obama administrations. In 2012, Foreign Policy Magazine named McRaven one of the nation's Top 10 foreign policy experts and he was later selected as one of the Top 100 Global Thinkers. He served as primary author of the President's first National Strategy for Combating Terrorism. He has received the Federal Law Enforcement Officers Association's National Award and the National Intelligence Award. In 2011, McRaven was the first runner-up for Time magazine's Person of the Year and was subsequently selected by the Dallas Morning News as the 2011 Texan of the Year for his leadership of the raid that killed Osama Bin Laden. McRaven is also a recognized national authority on U.S. foreign policy. He served two years on the National Security Council Staff under President George W. Bush. McRaven serves as a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.”

Another UTIMCO director is Kyle Bass of Dallas, the man who bought $1 million in nickels, and apparently not a close relation to the Fort Worth Bases. Kyle was at one time with Legg Mason, a firm with Pilgrims Society connections, and also with Bear Stearns, again with Pilgrims Society connections. Is Kyle a member? I'd have to have a current roster or other acceptable info to know that. He runs Hayman Capital Management. Sir Graham Hayman appears in The Pilgrims London 1957 roster. Connection? Perhaps. Sir Graham Hayman chaired Distillers Corporation Limited and expanded it into chemicals, petroleum and pharmaceuticals. The 1974 London roster shows---

Hayman, Sir Peter, K.C.M.G., C.V.O., M.B.E.

Peter Hayman held 16 British government diplomatic posts and ended as British High Commissioner in Canada. He was also named as a pedophile. You didn't read me applying that label to anyone else in this presentation.

H. Lee S. Hobson, a UTIMCO director, also ID's himself as a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and another Episcopalian. Over the years since 1921 this CFR has had literally over 1,000 New York bankers in membership. It's an unofficial subsidiary of The Pilgrims organization. Hobson is an alumnus of Goldman Sachs. Does the background on UTIMCO directors suggest they'd take any action to hasten the end of COMEX gold and silver price ceilings? In that case there's not a bean sprout in Chinatown.

Returning to the recent Texas Tribune news story---

“Several companies told Hegar they were skeptical that the Texas depository could ever gain membership in COMEX, which currently requires that all its licensed gold depositories be located within 150 miles of New York City. Texas may be too far outside that mileage parameter, unless the State of Texas can make provisions for exceptions with these organizations,” a U.S. subsidiary of Switzerland-based Loomis International wrote. Addison-based Dillon Gage, which runs private precious metal depositories in Delaware and Toronto, noted that CME membership would give the Texas depository a “certain reputational weight” and predicted that the CME would likely waive its geographic restrictions “for a state-run depository.”

Notice they say the State of Texas should subordinate itself to COMEX in regard to gold TEXAS owns!

This spiderweb of corruption is pervasive! The president of Loomis International for its USA operations was with the Du Pont (silver users) interests! Loomis is a Silver Users Association member! Yeah, they want gold bullion concentrated within the radius where the majority of Pilgrims Society members in the New York branch reside! For Dillon Gage to say that CME membership would give a Texas gold depository “a certain reputational weight” is no more outrageous than saying nurses should create a Richard Speck Memorial Society because it would give the nursing occupation “a certain reputational weight.” Speck was the murderer who slashed 8 student nurses to death in Chicago in 1966.

The Texas State Comptroller, Glenn Hegar was appointed to the Sunset Advisory Commission by lieutenant governor David Dewhurst. DD is said to be worth $200 million and is a “former” Central Intelligence Agency staffer. The 2005 Who’s Who in America, page 1150, shows that Dewhurst was appointed to the President’s Commission on the Capabilities of the U.S. Intelligence Community. Dewhurst is head honcho of Falcon Seaboard, an energy producer. David Cameron, director of exploration, came from Zilkha Energy Company. We mentioned the wealthy Zilkha family in #25 Silver Squelchers. The Zilkhas, an old family of wealth originating in Iraq, has had deals with Goldman Sachs. Director of acquisitions at Falcon Seaboard is---get this, it’s a corker---David BULLION.

More from the Texas Tribune's extremely biased story---

“Some warned that Texas taking on UTIMCO's gold might not be a good deal for UTIMCO. The State of Texas should carefully consider the consequences of moving the gold bullion to Texas,” Delaware Depository, a precious metals dealer, wrote. “The cost of relocation, internal cost of storage, and negative impact on liquidity may greatly exceed the storage savings.” A possible compromise solution came from a U.S. subsidiary of Hong Kong-based logistics and storage firm Malca-Amit, though Texas lawmakers aren't likely to welcome it. “Should the state of Texas wish to establish a COMEX gold vault, in order to expedite the process, Malca-Amit would happily operate that vault within NYC on behalf of Texas,” the company wrote.”

Gold's liquidity suffers unless it's stored in a COMEX vault?
How can COMEX gold have superior liquidity when it's suspect of even being there?

Delaware Depository is in Wilmington Delaware, a state intensively dominated by the Du Pont family (Pilgrims Society), who long ago earned the nickname “merchants of death” for their munitions industry dominance. The Du Ponts are top industrial silver users and there was a Du Pont on the board of the second United States Bank! Note that the CBOT, Chicago Board of Trade, is since known as the CME Group---

What would the “consequences of moving the gold bullion to Texas” be, besides hindering the gold price managers from continuing to suppress gold quotes and continue their illegal daisy chain of multiple rehypothecation of gold? Gold that they don’t own! Delaware Depository warns Texas about “the cost of relocation,” what’s that next to eventually you don’t have it and can’t get it? If Texas were to move Texas university endowment owned gold to Texas, hell, that would be like bringing the damn bubonic plague there, huh? If the gold were moved to Texas, fiat economists on college faculties would all develop ruptured colons and their eyeballs would turn into warts! “Don’t move the gold to Texas” warns the megabanker, “because THERE ARE CHILDREN THERE!”

Comes next another garish gold goblin, Malca-Amit, which works with London Bullion Market Association and COMEX members, telling Texas they’d be delighted to operate a COMEX affiliated gold vault in Pilgrims Society City (Manhattan/Wall Street) for Texas. It’s almost as if, when considering these gold suppressing forces, we were reading straight of an H.P. Lovecraft horror novel---

“I saw them in a limitless stream, flopping, hopping, croaking, bleating, surging inhumanly through the spectral moonlight in a grotesque, malignant saraband of fantastic nightmare. And some of them had tall tiaras of gold metal.”

Jeffrey Christian---we are speaking of you in this nightmare parade of gold price suppressors!

http://www.silvermarketnews.com/articles/JONATHAN_FRID_VOMITS_ON_SILVER_Savoie_102113.pdf

We mentioned Chicago killer Richard Speck. The Texas state government is at Austin, and the main campus of the University of Texas system is there. In August 1966, Charles Whitman launched a killing spree from atop a tower, and news coverage was legendary. So I liken the gold suppressors in UTIMCO to monetary Charles Whitmans, assassinating gold prices by insisting on linkage of that gold to the COMEX gold cartel. They are “in cahoots” with COMEX price suppressors and don’t want that gold returned to Texas!

Also from the Texas Tribune story---

"With the passage of this bill, the Texas Bullion Depository will become the first state-level facility of its kind in the nation, increasing the security and stability of our gold reserves and keeping taxpayer funds from leaving Texas to pay for fees to store gold in facilities outside our state," Abbott said when he signed the bill. The depository won't just store state gold and other precious metals. The law requires that individual customers, and even school districts, be allowed to open accounts. Capriglione has described it as a bank that doesn't do any lending."

In what manner will that Texas owned gold, stored in New York probably by now as mere phantom bullion, be more secure by not being brought back to Texas? What are the intentions of Governor Abbott? From his words we conclude he thinks/intends that the gold should be brought back to Texas and stored in the new depository building. One size figure mentions 46,000 square feet. How would that gold be more secure by being slaved to the COMEX system? It's great about government entities and individuals being able to open accounts in the upcoming bank, and yes it is a challenge to the Federal Reserve. How Texas HB got 140 yea votes to 4 nay votes is beyond comprehension. The votes were right, but go all the way already, okay? Insist on immediate return of that gold! It can be shipped by train with detachments of the Texas National Guard to protect it. Once back in Texas, presumably in Austin, there are sufficient basements that one can be secured by the same protection until the new facility is completed. There are no objections of material fact to the gold's return---this is an orgy of dishonesty!

As an alternative, Texas could use “The War Wagon” (1967) to transport the gold---a great John Wayne movie with some philosophical comparisons to this situation, as the movie also involved theft of gold.

Can't Texas state officials take a lesson from the situation of German owned gold supposedly stored at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York? It's like telling looters and shoplifters to stock your shelves, only worse. Bankers are fond of telling politicians and governments that only they possess the maturity to store others gold. Sure, you own it, they say, “but it's just so risky for you to be in physical possession of it! We alone are qualified to hold it because only we understand finance!”

Just like the Congressional Record, the State of Texas maintains a record of its legislative chamber proceedings and the wording of bills. Herewith from page 5774 of <http://www.journals.house.state.tx.us/hjrnl/84r/pdf> --- (from Texas HB #483, the gold bill) ---

“A purported confiscation, requisition, seizure, or other attempt to control the ownership, disposition, or proceeds of a withdrawal, transfer, liquidation, or settlement of a depository account...if effected by a governmental or quasi-governmental authority other than an authority of this state...in the course of a generalized declaration of illegality or emergency relating to the ownership, possession, or disposition of one or more precious metals...is void.”

The dynastic families feeding off the Federal Reserve are fearful this gold bank idea will be copied by other States. With Texas being a top-tier state in both population and land area, this worries them all the more.

“Well you’re scared boy! That’s just fine! You go right on being scared! You tell that daddy of yours to do the same!”---“The Rifleman,” October 20, 1959.

Beyond this show of interference (UTIMCO) and lack of will to go all the way (Texas state lawmakers) we also behold incapacity to grasp a historic situation! The Texas Tribune of March 21, 2013 quoted Fort Worth based state representative Lon Burnam saying---

“State Rep. Lon Burnam, D-Fort Worth, said he was familiar with Capriglione's bill but was skeptical that it addresses a legitimate problem facing the state. “We’ve got plenty of real problems that we’re not going to deal with this session,” Burnam said. "Let’s deal with them.”

Is the Texas owned gold just no more important than a piece of popcorn on a movie theater floor?

The USA banking system is subject to freezing up, the public faces the specter of a Roosevelt style bank “holiday,” state of Texas officials are taking some steps towards protecting their residents and businesses, and this yahoo from what they sometimes call “Cowtown” doesn’t see that Texas HR 483 “addresses a legitimate problem facing the state?” His perspective is incredible.

Texas officials better get serious about getting state owned gold out of the hellhole New York banking system, as President Obama appears trying to get us into war with Russia or China or both. Then another national emergency can be declared and the obstacles towards recovering that gold will render the recovery hopeless. It may already be hopeless! In that case, better to have the scandal burst open like the giant banker’s colostomy bag it is, sooner rather than later. The bankers maintain this price cap on metals to block wealth transfer to metals longs. They accuse us of greed! However, which is the recipient of a payment better off with---gold, silver, or a skidding currency based on legal tender laws that eventually can’t maintain it? How far would a jeweler get selling diamond certificates, with no diamonds corresponding with them? Or an auto dealer offering car titles and no cars? In money we're expected to accept this brand of folly.

Gold suppression originates from the topmost levels in the USA and England. On March 24, 1969, President Nixon became honorary president of the top banker group, The Pilgrims U.S. Barely 29 months later, Nixon slammed the gold window at the Treasury shut---

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

March 24, 1969

Dear Hugh:

I am very grateful to you for your kind invitation to serve as Honorary President of The Pilgrims of the United States. It was thoughtful of you to send me the pamphlet describing The Pilgrims' activities with your letter and I want you to know that I will be glad to accept your invitation.

As you know, I was delighted to have the opportunity to address The Pilgrims of the United States during my term of office as Vice President some years ago, and I greatly appreciate the privilege of serving as Honorary President of this distinguished organization.

With my thanks for your generous remarks and with warm regards,

Sincerely,

Mr. Hugh Bullock
President
The Pilgrims of the United States
74 Trinity Place
New York, New York 10006

(Located on page 141 of "The Pilgrims of the United States," short run book, 2003. Bullock's office was at number 1 Wall Street! The American Stock Exchange was at 86 Trinity Place!) This is "a distinguished organization" the TV newscasters N-E-V-E-R mention! Their bosses are members! This item shows the control of The Pilgrims Society over the White House

Nixon's daughter married Edward F. Cox, son of Howard Ellis Cox who was a major land developer on Long Island (Pilgrims New York leaked lists, 1974, 1980). Of Ed Cox we read---

“He is the scion of six old American families, the Winthrops, the Finches, the Coxes, the Livingstons, the Schuylers, and the Delafields. Cox is named for his grandfather, Judge Edward R. Finch, a prominent New York jurist who served as a State court judge from 1915 to 1943 and rose to be the Presiding Justice of the State's First Department and an Associate Judge on the State's highest court, the New York Court of Appeals. His father, Howard Ellis Cox, was a decorated World War II aviator and a New York lawyer and Long Island real estate developer.”

Edward Ridley Finch was a Pilgrims member, and the families listed have all been well represented in the Society, with the Coxes being at the back of this particular pack. The Winthrops have strong Federal Reserve linkage. The Delafields were prominent in the Bank of America in its early days, and trace to a Count De La Feld in France over 1,200 years ago. We profiled the Delafields in #3 Silver Squelchers, pages 44-52.

In closing, if Texas government officials wanted to do the right thing, they'd take the following steps immediately---One, purge the corrupt management of UTIMCO and replace them with people who want Texas owned gold stored in Texas rather than in New York or Delaware and Two, publicly repudiate and disavow any linkage of the Texas owned gold to any COMEX depository and to the COMEX system and the CME Group and no linkage to any gold futures derivatives contracts and Three, tell the vipers in the New York banking community to immediately restore Texas gold to Texas. Failing full compliance after one month, Texas should sue the entities where the Texas gold is purported to be stored. Let the Texas gold motto be (quoting James Garner as Luther Sledge in the 1970 Western, “A Man Called Sledge”) ---

“Now we’re going in there, and we’re coming out with that gold!”

Item of interest---Hospital Corporation of America is a major component in The Pilgrims Society’s drive to cartelize medicine and use it as their final ace in the hole to “seize” and “absorb” wealth from the middle class. See this item on HCA gouging someone for $45,000 for an emergency room visit he said he didn’t need and all he got was some IV fluids (probably so they could say they “treated him”). Ann Lamont, an HCA director, is the wife of 4th generation Pilgrims Society member Edward M. Lamont Jr., profiled in #15 Silver Squelchers, pages 161-196. Ed Lamont Jr. “is the great-grandson of former J. P. Morgan & Co. chairman Thomas W. Lamont.” Ed and Ann Lamont reside in a $10 million home, paid for in part by those $45,000 unnecessary emergency room visits. The Lamonts have multiple wealth streams pouring “seized” and “absorbed” funds into their pockets. The 1974-1975 Who’s Who in America, page 1431, showed John Alexander Hill (Pilgrims Society) on the HCA board, and was associated with the Wells Fargo banking and Aetna Insurance interests. Beware Big Medicine, Big Hospitals and Big Pharma, these are bigger threats to Americans wealth and health than any subversive interference with gold and silver! If you’ve followed the Silver Squelchers series you know the #34 was the last in the series of current identifiable members. I hope to resume public research with a Silver Squelchers Flashback series, profiling men who were members in earlier times and there will be some eye-openers.
