“THE ROTHSCHILDS WERE ACCUSED OF HAVING CONSPIRED TO DEMONETIZE SILVER AND CORNER THE GOLD SUPPLY.”---New York Times, March 8, 1931, section 9, page 3 (reference to the Crime of '73).

www.lcf-rothschild.com features a unique emblem; what is your take on the symbol in the middle?

Lord Rothschild funded Cecil Rhodes, diamond monopolist of South Africa.

Out of Rhodes wills came into existence the Rhodes Scholars, world government activists (Hilary Clinton is married to one), the Royal Institute for International Affairs, the Council on Foreign Relations and invisibly hovering above them the supersecret Pilgrims Society, which united such other predatory dynastic families as the Windsors, Rockefellers, Mellons, Astors, Du Ponts, Kleinworts, Harrimans, Lehmans, Stillmans, Drexels, Vanderbilts, Cullmans, Livingstons and many others in The City of London and Wall Street as The Paper Money Mob. Today they plan to impose the “Amero” on us---soon, in a North American Union! Someone will scream until comatose! If Hugo Salinas-Price succeeds in Mexico, a fantastic shift in world power will start! Those of you who believe, pray for his success---and his protection. If you are a Mexican-American, you should be telling all your acquaintances about www.plata.com.mx/plata/ and starting your own metallic savings plan.

“The idea that money should be in the hands of government is a superstition, like the divine right of kings.”---Jerome Smith in “The New Boom In Silver,” 1983, page 109

More wisdom from times past---

“WE CAN DO NOTHING TO RAISE THE EXCHANGE VALUE OF FIAT MONEY.”---Unnamed Chinese banker addressing meeting in Hong Kong, quoted by Nevada Silver Senator Key Pittman (New York Times, December 6, 1931, page 24)

“Hoarding becomes necessary, AND PAPER MONEY IS UNSUITABLE FOR THIS PURPOSE.”---Reference to silver in China and India made by Handy & Harman, New York Times (January 3, 1932, section II, page 11)

“THE SILVER MARKET IS AN ABSOLUTE CLOSED MONOPOLY AS IT IS NOW CONDUCTED, CONTROLLED BY LONDON. BUT IT IS FREQUENTLY SAID BY SILVER PRODUCERS THAT THIS IS AN ARBITRARY EXERCISE OF THE MONOPOLISTIC CONTROL OF NEW YORK.”---Colorado Congressman William R. Eaton speaking in the House of Representatives, May 1, 1930 (New York Times, May 11, 1930, section III, page 5).

“What is commonly called paper money, that is, bills bearing that the person holding them is entitled to receive a certain sum specified in them, IS NOT, PROPERLY SPEAKING, MONEY AT ALL. It is barely a sign without being a pledge of standard of value, and therefore is effectually DEFECTIVE AS A MEDIUM OF UNIVERSAL COMMERCE. To arm such bills with the authority of the state, and make them a legal tender in all payments, is an absurdity so great that is not easy to speak with propriety upon it. It has been found by the experience of ages, that money must have a standard of value, and if any prince or state debase the metal below the standard, it is utterly impossible to make it succeed. HOW THEN CAN IT BE POSSIBLE TO MAKE THAT SUCCEED WHICH HAS NO VALUE AT ALL? In all such instances there may be great injuries done to particular persons by wiping off debt; but to give such money general currency is wholly impossible. The measure carries absurdity in its very face. Why will you make a law to oblige men to take money when it is offered them? Are there any who refuse it when it is good? If it is necessary to force them, does not this demonstrate that it is not good? We have seen indeed this system produce a most ludicrous inversion of the nature of things. For two or three years we constantly saw and were informed of CREDITORS RUNNING AWAY FROM THEIR DEBTOR, AND THE DEBTORS PURSUING THEM IN TRIUMPH, AND PAYING THEM WITHOUT MERCY.”---

John Witherspoon, 1723-1794, “Essay On Money IV”

This Presbyterian minister and signer of the Declaration of Independence spoke of debtors in his times paying creditors with worthless money---paper!

This took place in France at nearly the same time (early to mid 1790's).

This recurred again in Germany in the early 1920's until enough people became totally disgusted with accepting worthless paper notes as payment; whereupon the New York Times reported, "Judicial Movement Started To Prevent Payment of Debts in Worthless Paper Currency" (July 29, 1923, section II, page 12). Our Federal Reserve (figurehead) chairman Benjamin Bernanke has made a famous remark about dropping "money" from helicopters. In Weimar Republic Germany, 12 paper mills worked 24/7 churning out Mark notes ranging into the mega-trillions (NYT, February 9, 1923, page 1.) But all the paper money printed failed to bring prosperity to Germany. Paper money had to be carried in wheelbarrows. The money became so valueless that assailants knocked victims down, dumped the Marks out of the wheelbarrows, and made off with the wheelbarrows.

Everyone was disgusted with being paid in garbage. Are you new to this site, and to silver? If so, we have news for you---paper money isn't wealth. Our government has us on counterfeit currency, paper notes not convertible into silver and gold. High-tech and computer programs cannot save us from currency crisis and collapse; much less so the university economists who hoodwink their students in every session! The Kansas City Star said, "silver is an unimportant product” (quoted by New York Times, December 23, 1933, page 2). Is it possible that what we use as paper currency could become as much a joke in payment for goods and services, as if the providers of these were offered prices printed on catalogues, cut out with scissors, of various items advertised in Sunday paper inserts (yes)? My cross-country associate Mr. Morgan who runs this site spoke recently on the topic of a worldwide currency crisis that we appear likely to witness partway into the next Presidential administration. Unfortunately we are not going to have at the helm of our ship of state, anyone remotely equal to Jackson, Van Buren and Tyler, three precious metals Presidents I profiled here in 2006. I wish to take my own approach in looking at the impending situation described last month by David Morgan.

We know what the background consists of. The world has been “dollarized” since Bretton Woods in 1944, with additional, ever more dangerous refinements added on a regular basis since then. The progression towards “softer” and less real money included abandonment of silver coins and phasing out of silver certificates. The last straw took place in August 1971 when Mr. Nixon closed the gold redemption window to foreigners holding dollars. Recently when China came and attempted to buy UNOCAL, the former Union Oil Company of California, Congress refused to allow the transaction. This is another landmark in the worldwide flight from dollars. The United Arab Emirates and Iran have expressed allergic reactions to dollars, and there are problems in Venezuela and Bolivia, where they know foreign bankers wrecked Argentina not long ago. Let’s consider a fictionalized account of happenings in the year 2010.

Leading up to this chaos we may find across the world news scene a fearsome war with Iran, with China and Russia taking Iran’s side. (In fact, Russian General Leonid Ivashov asserts the U.S. will strike Iran in spring 2007 and more of our liberties will be at risk due to “national emergency” and “state of war” declarations)--- <http://www.globalresearch.ca/index.php?context=viewArticle&code=IVA20070124&articleId=4581> Turkey, a long time ally, may display its real inclinations by denying American and British use of Turkish airfields and airspace. The Department of Homeland Security adds a “Terror Czar” (a CFR member) who announces he will release a list of those who fit the profile---anyone who hits the ground with both feet could be a terrorist! The Salem Witch Trials have remanifested in a different form! Freedoms are lost due to wartime “security needs.” Millions more Mexican nationals have by 2010 poured into America, with the necessary consequence of lowering living standards by averaging into the picture more demand for tax funded services. China, Russia and India lead the charge out of dollars and into gold and silver. The reaction is more violently parabolic than in December 1979 when the Soviets invaded Afghanistan. The new president and Congress go on the TV networks and sternly tell us that all citizens must accept ever cheapening, slithery Federal Reserve notes and bank checks denominated in them, or be sent to internment camps---some in Mexican territory. Excess canine populations were no longer being euthanized at shelters; they were shipped to a huge agribusiness concern for processing into meat to feed interned people who forfeited their citizenship through tax delinquency and failure of Patriotism Personality profiles and were compelled to work in processing plants. Oftentimes these dogs were indiscriminately bred first so as to raise more food animals. In some areas, wild hogs are harvested for feeding criminally interned convicts.

It has become common knowledge that the rest of the world is revolting against dollars. Imported products, which are most everything, have become stunningly expensive. Oil prices have moved so high that many Americans are turning to bicycle transportation as in China. Interstate tourism is dead to all but the wealthy. Assorted foreign leaders are warning the United States and Great Britain that they risk total exclusion from world trade as long as they oppose return to use of precious metals to settle accounts. America is no longer considered the world's beacon of liberty; the character of its government is too obviously despotic. The IMF is criticized as a "giant mosquito sucking blood from developing nations." As the dollar is deserted as the reserve currency, the IMF announces it will release a new currency to "superintend" the Euro and the Amero. Gold and silver shows and coin conventions are shut down as a "national security" measure.

Members of Congress who front for the banking and silver using interests are at each other's throats. Silver users want all capital gains taxes on silver abolished for private individuals who are willing to sell to them alone at "controlled" rates, meaning, below international valuations; whereas banking interests simply want silver and gold confiscated from the citizenry. Strings are pulled, and the older and superior Money Power puts the silver users in their place. Those holding metals aren't desirous of selling, as they sense absolute failure of paper currency and electronic credits is just around the corner. They want to have metallic money in reserve for a time when public response to paper money is no different than if they were being handed reeking manure. Banking functionaries in Congress want all gold and silver mined in and imported to the North American Union to be shipped to the Treasury for distribution to “qualified” recipients. Rumors surface that all gold will be seized and shipped to the IMF. It has been one year since Federal agents seized investor owned silver stored in COMEX warehouses for military industrial use. Naturally, they stormed in hollering, screaming, and pointing automatic weapons. The government suspended silver trading; declared short sellers absolved of all responsibilities including mere cash settlement, and imposed a $10 per ounce price cap on silver (exempting fabricated items). Arab terrorist groups were blamed for sinking ships at sea transporting silver, which allegedly caused the onset of delivery problems. Treasury agents, one of them cousin to a prominent New York banker having a gilded genealogy, “visited” mining executives and detained them for hours before leaving. Americans are forbidden to send wire transfers to an expanded list of off-limits countries and institutions.

A sweeping system of rent controls was imposed on owners of apartments and rental properties. Some rent rates were rolled back; others were frozen. Certain large scale operators were approached beforehand and offered membership in specific organizations. They received exemptions. Gradually, affected owners were squeezed out and those with exemptions took over their holdings. A Federal Property Tax Agency was created to levy additional taxes on homeowners. This drove many to suicide and many more into the streets. The vacated structures were assigned to people having come up from South of the Rio Grande. A system was under consideration in which people new to areas would be assigned residency to housing units that contained no more than two persons living in houses with more than one bedroom. Wal-Mart was having difficulty procuring goods from China. Shortages of many items were common. Interstate tourism was over due to transportation costs. Many rest home residents were ordered euthanized because the nation was told the health care resources were more badly needed elsewhere. Strange epidemics cut a devastating path through the population.

Some in Congress want to seize silver first and insist there will be no gold seizure. Their intent is simply to distract, beguile, and separate gold investors from silver investors so as to weaken both groups in an attempt to isolate them from each other. This fails because too many citizens are holding both metals. (If you really want confiscation to never take place, do the following on a one month timetable---1) write your Congressman and Senator as to your vote if they support such a move; 2) send a one page form letter containing a summary of silver fundamentals to new and used car dealers in your area; oil and gas operators; insurance agency owners; medical doctors; attorneys; and real estate developers and builders as to why they should own silver and gold. Send out at least 100 letters all marked “URGENT.” The more of these type people are invested, the lower the ownership risk becomes! In fact, it would lower the risk of any of these adverse hypothetical events detailed below.)

At www.msnbc.msn.com/id/16828651/ you can read about the state legislature in Maine asking Congress to repeal the Real ID Act, due to take effect in 2008, creating a National ID Card. Maine has indicated it will not comply with this intrusiveness. Any time whatsoever spent on professional sports is time you could spend pressuring our “leaders” to start doing what’s right, and undoing what’s wrong. Forget the next sports event and spend the time sending E-mails, snail mail, and making phone calls to state and national lawmakers. There’s also the New Hampshire state initiative to restore gold and silver coin to use in commerce www.goldmoneybill.org/ Please take a look also at www.leg.state.nv.us/72nd/bills/ab/ab532.html to see attitudes in Nevada about the Federal Reserve System and its illegal “money.” We need other state legislatures to follow suit. We also need them to pressure Congress to withhold all Federal appointments from CFR members.

If we say there’s really no use trying we are giving ground to the depraved. The baseball game demands our concentration. In such a case, read on to see more of what they wish to do as the return to Feudalism marches forward---

Attacks on privacy, freedom of speech and the Internet, freedom to travel and against the Bill of Rights have accelerated in the name of the “War on Terror” and “national security.” The American Psychiatric Association championed the view that political and moral disagreement is a “mental illness” in need of court ordered treatment in order to benefit pharmaceutical concerns controlled by the Money Power. The right of the accused to confront his accuser is almost gone. Totalitarian national ID cards were imposed in late 2009. The biggest reason it is believed, that Americans have lost so many rights their Founding Fathers fought the British to gain, is that they were distracted to the point of mass hypnosis by professional sports mania. Meantime the termites did their work. The asinine craze for football prevented the people, by distraction, from being politically active. They therefore received what they in fact as ignorant, unvigilant people deserved---the worst leaders possible. They got rabid warmongers, thieves intent on stripping them of their entire standard of living through job exportation and ever tightening taxation, and cruel maniacs purposing to inflict a lethal police state on them. Motion pictures were being released containing subliminal messages such as “only traitors question their leaders.” So-called “compliance chemicals,” really drugs, were added to municipal and bottled water supplies to help the populace to be more pliable to government policies. Tight restrictions were placed on sale of all water filtration systems and replacement filters. Owners of water wells had to supply proof of addition of CC’s or face forfeiture of their property. The British Ambassador was frequently seen conferring with the director of Homeland Security. Thousands of police departments were effectively under HS control. Their members were warned to never call people “citizens.” They must be called “civilians.”

Very few working people were left in the United States who still believed there was any substantial difference between Republicans and Democrats, as they could at last see lurking behind both parties the Horned Devil of World Finance. (In fact, none of the Presidential contenders mentioned by major media are free from bad connections. Senator McCain of Arizona is the son of an Admiral who was a member of The Pilgrims Society.)

On a day in which millions of people went to their local banks or automatic teller machines to withdraw cash, they found the doors locked and power to the machines shut off. It was like a scene from the Argentinean bank freeze.

Guards were posted in front of the doors; vicious men radiating insane brutality hoping for any excuse to commit murder and splatter blood and brains everywhere. Depositors were told they could not make any banking withdrawals because too much money was being funneled to terrorists. A national bank freeze was declared for a two-week period in which a transition to the new Amero currency would transpire. Securities trading was also frozen. Terrorists, the public was told, were holding so many dollars that it became necessary to “cancel them out” so they could not buy weapons of mass destruction and arm suicide bombers. The real reason, to the contrary, was that the dollar was just dying---too many nations wanted no more of them. At the close of the two-week freeze, depositors could exchange dollars for Ameros, or deposit dollars for Amero bank credits.

Lobbies were full of Spanish speakers. Many could speak English, but refused to do so (the same social phenomenon as in French Quebec). The new President warned Americans that she would cut off food shipments and electric power to any urban areas too infested with protest. She had recently attended a Bilderberg meeting and been accepted for membership into The Pilgrims Society. She announced a plan for a compulsory universal non-military service corps in which everyone not engaged in exempted occupations nor past a certain age or with limiting health conditions, must serve two years. Accompanying this mandatory service was a six-week training program in which participants were told the Constitution is outdated, how ignorant the Founding Fathers were, and how the State is their real Parent and Guardian.

A plan was announced that by year-end 2012, all residents within the North American Union have a three-year period during which they must report to designated facilities to be implanted with their personal lifetime RFID chip. Plan originators refused to answer questions as to whether there was to be a small class in society who would be exempt from chipping; namely, those insisting that everyone else be chipped! All vitamins, minerals and herbs were now available by prescription only, and prices surged 800% or more.

The health food and vitamin industry was ruined as consolidation was cartelized into pharmaceutical hands interlocked with the big New York banks. It was made illegal to stage protest demonstrations in Washington. Citizens could not purchase seeds or fruit tree saplings. Retail produce markets were summarily closed down due to Federal "health concerns." The consequences of not being politically active were more severe than any nightmare turned real. The new "brainwave lie detectors" were being installed at larger supermarkets. Testing was made compulsory to determine if individuals were buying oranges for either vitamin-C or potassium content. The same testing applied to certain spices alleged to have health benefits such as cinnamon, cloves, oregano and ginger.

It was being proposed that marriage licenses be denied if upon review by psychiatric authorities the proposed partners were deemed incompatible with State interests. A two-child limit was in the works for new parents. People who wanted larger dogs for protection were forced to undergo "Patriotism Personality profiles." As part of this, they were asked whether they owned any sharp kitchen knives or glass objects. Large, healthy dogs with loving homes were subject to seizure and shipment to processing plants if owners failed PP profiles. A new flag was unveiled, replacing the Star Spangled Banner, Maple Leaf and Mexican flags. It was revealed in a large advertising campaign six-weeks before July the 4th. People were warned to not fly the American flag they grew up with; that was now a felony punishable by the State. The new flag featured a curious and intimidating design with jagged lightning bolts radiating outwards from an "all seeing eye," suggesting that no resident must by any means express disagreement with the leadership. The Secretary Generals of the North American Union and the United Nations addressed a closed meeting of The Pilgrims Society on Wall Street, over which the British Ambassador to the NAU presided. A Canadian and a Mexican now appeared on the new Supreme Court, hostile towards individual rights.

We were being told that borders between Mexico and Canada were still existent, but they meant substantially less than in times past. The Trans-Texas Corridor Authority had its way, bulldozing the rights of all who suffered because of it www.texastollparty.com/ttp\_trans\_texas.php and www.corridorwatch.org/ Canadian troops were sent to Oaxaca state in old Mexico to suppress agricultural unrest. Mexican troops were assigned to such diverse locations in the former United States as National Parks, hospitals and universities to police those areas. Their commanders told them, “Su poder no es un chiste; emplealo!” (“Your power isn’t a joke; use it!”) The National Rifle Association was subject to being fired upon at any gathering by any government troops. Rifle and target shooting ranges were closed to civilians. Private ownership of firearms was under the most intense attack in all history. NRA members realized with great guilt and bitterness that by being focused only on one Constitutional right, their other rights were ruined. That in turn led to ruination for their right to keep and bear arms. They saw themselves as mountain climbers whose sole concern was for thin air, and were hit unprepared by lightning, high winds, avalanches and rockfall. They failed to realize that the right to keep and bear arms was dependent upon all the other basic rights---including the right to protect their finances by owning precious metals. Speeches were delivered in Congress calling for summary execution of all private owners of firearms and those “hoarding” gold and silver. Hugo Salinas-Price was condemned by a group of economists as a financial renegade tempting the masses. They issued a statement ridiculing silver as money, explaining that “silver is not backed by the Government.” Ownership of private property was denounced as seditious to the new order. Schoolchildren were held for several overnight sessions in which they were told their loyalty must be to the State, and they should report on their parents when necessary. 1984 arrived 26 years late.

Several thousand individuals recorded by Global Positioning Systems to have been at gold and silver exchanges were attacked by government in a particularly brutal manner, stripping them of everything. The EDR’s (Event Data Recorders) www.foxnews.com/story/0,2933,141048,00.html in their late model automobiles were triggered to send all contained data to local police agencies. This followed a secretive campaign of installation of millions of sensors in appropriate locations. The victims were then issued dozens to hundreds of tickets (“citations”) each going back to the day they bought the vehicle, corresponding to every time they exceeded any speed limits, delayed by more than ten seconds engaging their seat belts, and other faultfinding infractions. Punitive interest was assessed for “late penalties.”

Most of them were forced into bankruptcy in order to end claims against them, but only after being stripped of absolutely everything. Even future inheritances were assigned by vindictive judges to cover the accrued fines.

Whole life policies were confiscated. Options were granted for selling organs for transplant in lieu of fines.

The next identical wave was targeted at National Rifle Association members by means of technology implanted at gun dealer locations. All voicing opposition to overseas military adventurism, sensing manipulation by several foreign governments, were struck next.

Because the outgoing administration erected a naval blockade against Venezuela, South American nations reacted in sympathy with their neighbor by nationalizing all foreign owned mineral interests. They announced the move would not be rescinded unless the United States renounced its role as the world’s bully. A second stipulation was hastily added that we would have to start a serious plan to make international trade payments in gold and silver. This demand was accompanied by a progressive deadline (10% within 3 years, 100% within 15 years.) This caused so much pandemonium in Washington and New York that the use of nuclear devices was threatened unless the South American economies adopted a “responsible” outlook. Just before the blockade, super-rich members of The Pilgrims were told to go heavily short any mining concern with interests there (silver and gold were being shipped to markets outside the former United States so as to chase the best returns). Senior naval admirals, some of them members, coordinated the “investment” with members running major Wall Street investment banking concerns. These admirals would later be placed on the board of directors. The members were able to cover the short sales at a huge gain, which in turn was used to buy working control of many mining companies they didn’t already control. Managements were ousted en masse. At that point, hedging policies were implemented, effectively capping gold and silver prices at low levels in order to benefit their fiat paper Amero. Silver was frequently hedged below the $10 Federal price cap, insuring that ore sites would be high graded. The naval blockade of Venezuela was lifted, with a warning that they not “trifle” with the North American Union.

As members of the Council on Foreign Relations and its superior parent organization, The Pilgrims Society, aged, nothing changed because younger members assumed their roles. Government agencies were full of them as total dictatorship approached. The State Department and White House saw many more visiting British than usual. Bizarrely, one of them appeared dressed like Lord Cornwallis at his Virginia headquarters in Revolutionary War times. These people with English accents appeared delighted with changing developments in our political landscape, as representative government was a concept fast nearing extinction. The model of “with the consent of the governed” had mutated into “only an elite has the maturity to rule.” Millions realized that Arnold Schwarzenegger, who fought the bad guys in film fictions, was truly in their camp. He had recently been seen exiting the former Federal Reserve Building with the ex-Prince Charles, now King of England and patron of The Pilgrims Society. It was widely believed that Arnold would be next Prime Minister of the North American Union.

Is it necessary to continue speculating as to what our political, social and economic landscape could look like in a few years as assaults on the Bill of Rights and the Constitution mount? The question to those of us who are not politically active is---will it take waking up one morning in a country as described above to cause you to realize what you should have done? Can you send out those 100 letters suggested so we can gain allies? Will we scream until comatose later, or move to restore representative government today, which is responsive to the will of We The People? It would be a strong step in a better direction if members of the National Rifle Association added the cause of Constitutional money to their agenda. Lead slugs and brass shell casings are hardly enough to protect all our rights. I suggest you visit www.fff.org/ The Foundation For The Future Of Freedom website.
